SIX DEAD AND THIRTY INJURED

Awful Result of Explosion in Windy City.

CHEMICALS IN A BASEMENT LET GO

First Notice of Danger Is a Rush of Flames.

Panic Seizes Employes of Two Concerns—It Is Feared That a Number of Others Will Die as a Result of Breathing Poisonous Fumes from the Chemicals—Mother and Child Burned to Death.

Chicago, June 25.—At least six persons were burned to death and thirty persons injured, seven fatally, in a fire and explosion today which wrecked the building occupied by the Pabst Chemical company and the P. L. Novelty company at Erie and Wells streets. Six bodies, terribly burned, have been taken out by firemen searching the building, and it is feared others may be in the ruins. The injured were all taken to North Side hospitals, and it is feared that six of them inhaled flames.

The Recovered Dead.

Mrs. James Nolan.
Helen Nolan, thirteen.
Mary Nolan, ten.
Jennie Nolan, seven.
Emma Nolan, four.
Emil Schultz.

Believed Fatally Injured.

Ella Boss, sixteen.
Elsie Boss, eighteen.
Annie Carlson, twenty.
Mary Hopkins, fourteen.
Catherine Colworth, nineteen.

Ollie Thomas, a negro, who jumped from the third floor after being badly burned.

Other Injured.

John Doody, a fireman, was hurt when his engine overturned. May die.

Other men and girls, numbering a score, were burned about the face and hands while rushing for the fire-escapes.

Four-Story Building.

The building was a four-story affair. The first floor and the basement were occupied by the Pabst Chemical company and the second floor by a number of families.

The fire resulted from an explosion of chemicals in the basement. The man who was killed is believed to have been near the scene of the explosion when the chemicals let go, and was instantly killed. His body was found in the basement.

The explosion blew out all the windows in the building and the plaster off the walls. The flames spread quickly through the building and before the occupants could get out, the interior was ablaze.

Flames Rush Up Stairway.

The thirty-five employes of the Pabst Chemical company and the forty or more employes of the P. L. Novelty company first learned of the fire when the flames came rushing up the stairways. Some fled for the fire escapes and were cut off before they could climb down. These were compelled to leap to te ground, sustaining minor injuries in addition to their burns.

Most of the occupants of the building, however, fled to the upper floors and then to the roof, where they remained until firemen rescued them by means of ladders. Many were in need of medical assistance and were hurried to hospitals.

The two boss girls were caught by the flames while trying to reach the fire escape. The hair was burned off their heads and both were terribly burned.

Mother and Children.

The bodies of Mrs. Nolan and her children were found in a room on the top floor. A fireman went into the fire enveloped building and thinking he heard screams in a room on the upper floor, broke down the door and found the bodies. He picked up one of the Nolen children, brought the body down the fire escape, placed it in an ambulance and fell over in a faint.

Many other thrilling rescues were made by the firemen who entered the burning building with great daring and saved a number of persons from certain death.

The explosion started a small panic in the plant of the Theodore A. Kochs barber supply company, next door, the 400 employes of that plant rushing out pellmell. None was injured.

The Father Swoons.

James Nolan, father of the children killed in the fire, was hurried to the morgue where he viewed the bodies of his wife and children and then swooned.

Frank Carpenter, a chemical mixer and two young women stenographers employed by the Pabst Chemical company, are missing and it is feared they perished.

Fire Attorney Hogan this afternoon began an investigation of the charges made by S. Nathanson, manager of the P. L. Novelty company that the firemen in the fire-house next door refused to go to the fire when it had been burning ten minutes, declaring they had received no orders.

Half Dozen Believed Lost.

St. Louis, Mo., June 25.—At least half a dozen persons are believed to have lost their lives in the explosion of the gasoline launch, Midget, near Carondel. The wrecked launch was found on the river bank today, but there is no trace of John Krauser, her owner, or the party of friends he took on a fishing trip yesterday. Residents along the river heard an explosion about midnight, but could not ascertain the cause. Krauser is missing from his home here. It is not known how many were in the party, but he usually invited at least six friends.

$30,000 HUSBAND AFTER A DIVORCE

Is Not Satisfied with His Second Matrimonial Plunge.

Chicago, June 25.—Freeman Worthington Butts, branded the $30,000 husband" by South Dakota papers, when Mrs. Susan Phillips App settled that much on her first husband to get a divorce, is himself the principal in a suit for separate maintenance brought by his wife. Butts gives his residence as Cleveland, Buffalo, Chicago and says that for several years he was a dry-goods clerk at Akron, Ohio. Butts met Mrs. App when she lived in Cleveland and their romance ended in the latter going to South Dakota to get a divorce. Butts joined Mrs. App in Minneapolis, where they were married after the decree had been issued in South Dakota. In her suit now being heard before Judge Hurd, Mrs. Butts charges her husband with repeated and extreme cruelty and neglect to provide for her. She also says unspecified women were with her husband at their Waubun apartments. Butts denies the charges.

WEIGHED DOWN BY THE MONEY

Which He Steals from Grocery Store Safe

A BURGLAR COMES CLOSE TO DROWNING

Is Rescued and Jailed at Springfield.

The Rescued Man and a Companion Use Nitroglycerin on Safe—One Door Is Blown Through a Plate Glass Window and Lands Across Street — Officers Pursue the Cracksmen in Automobiles.

Springfield, O., June 25.—An alleged yeggman weighted down with stolen money, would have drowned in the river a mile west of here at 4 o'clock this morning had not a pursuing officer plunged in and rescued him.

The man gave his name as George Day, and, with Charles Harris, is now in jail charged with blowing the safe in the grocery store of Philip Smith, about 3 o'clock.

The men used nitroglycerin, and the explosion aroused the neighborhood. One door of the safe was blown through a plate glass window and landed across the street. Money amounting to $180, mostly in silver, and notes and checks worth $2,000 were secured. An alarm was given immediately, and officers in an automobile were soon on the trail. They overtook the fugitives, who traveled on foot, west of the city. One of the pair jumped into the river and was drowning when a policeman reached him and pulled him out.

Money and papers were recovered.

All Seriously Hurt.

Gallipolis, O., June 25.—Rains and storms last night damaged crops and undermined the Raccoon river iron bridge, which fell with a crash just as a hack containing Noah Clark, Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Smith, had driven on it, precipitating them thirty feet. All were seriously injured, escaping after a desperate struggle.

ARRANGEMENTS FOR FUNERAL

Preparations for Obsequies of Cleveland.

AWAITS ARRIVAL OF THE PRESIDENT

Widow Wishes To Consult Mr. Roosevelt.

However the Pall-Bearers Have Been Chosen and the Minister Selected. Route to the Cemetery Will Be Roped Off by the Officials of Princeton To Prevent Possible Interference with Procession.

Princeton, N. J., June 25.—Arrangements for the funeral of the late ex-President Cleveland occupied the attention of those to whom the widow had intrusted this task, but they will not be completed until the arrival of President Roosevelt, who is expected to arrive here about noon tomorrow.

Mrs. Cleveland continues to bear up well. She had a comparatively good rest last night, although she remained up until a late hour going over the details of the funeral. She was awake early today and took a short stroll around the Westland grounds.

The city is beginning to fill up with visitors who have come to pay the last sad tribute to the distinguished dead and to handle the large crowd that is expected to be here tomorrow the police force has been enlarged.

Children Expected Tonight.

Esther and Richard, the only Cleveland children who will attend the funeral, are expected to arrive this evening. Friends of the family fear that the meeting between the bereaved mother and children will result at least in a partial breakdown of the former.

The simplicity of the funeral will be most marked. Only those invited will be permitted to enter the grounds, and the service will be brief.

A death mask of Mr. Cleveland will be taken today. Mrs. Cleveland having given her consent to the reproduction in clay of her dead husband's features. She refused, however to have the remains lie in state.

The coffin is a quarter-sawed oak and simple in design. The plain silver plate will bear the words "Grover Cleveland, March 18 1837; June 24, 1908."

Pall-Bearers Selected.

The following list of pall-bearers were announced this afternoon:

Paul Morton, president of the Equitable Life Assurance society; E. C. Benedict, New York; Dr. Henry Van Dyke, John Hibben, Professor Andrew West, dean of the graduate college of Princeton university, and President John Finley of the College of the City of New York.

The choice of a minister to conduct the funeral services lies between Rev. L. C. Baker and Rev. Sylvester Beach of the First Presbyterian church of Princeton, and Dr. Henry Van Dyke.

President Roosevelt will be met upon his arrival here tomorrow by Mayor Robinson and the city council. He will leave immediately after the funeral for Oyster Bay.

Crush Is Feared.

Fearful of a terrible crush, the streets over which the funeral cortege will pass from Westland to the cemetery will be roped off.

It has been settled however, that on leaving the Cleveland home, the funeral cortege will pass down Bayard street to Nassau street, the main street of this quiet little city, on which front the ivy-clad buildings of Princeton university. From Nassau street the cortege will turn into Vandeventer avenue and thence to Wiggins street, from which entrance will be gained to the cemetery. Here also every precaution will be taken to prevent a crush and the expected crowd will be restrained by police and ropes while the services at the graveside are being held.

Working on Death Mask.

In Princeton university today Edward Wilson, a sculptor, is working on a death mask of the ex-president. It shows Cleveland had failed greatly since the last published photographs of him were taken. But a few white hairs imbedded in the plaster were revealed when the chisel of the workman chipped away the white material, but at the temples and just below the cheek bones hollows betray the wasting processes of Cleveland's fatal disease. The broad, full forehead stands out more prominently than ever, speaking mutely of the power and resolution which feared to face no foe when Cleveland's mind and will guarded the destinies of the nation. When completed, the mask will form part of a collection presented to Princeton university by Lawrence Hutton, the late author.

Many Messages of Sympathy.

There is little movement today about the late chief executive's home. At the gate under a giant spruce tree stands a policeman and only occasionally a passerby turns his gaze to the lawns which stretch before the old colonial home.

No information as yet has been made public as to the part President Roosevelt will take in the funeral services.

Messages of sympathy continue to pour in on Mrs. Cleveland. Every royal family of Europe has been heard from.

To Attend Funeral.

Tamworth, N. H., June 25.—Accompanied by Mrs. John H. Finley of New York, Esther and Richard Cleveland, the two elder children of the late Ex-president Cleveland, left today for Princeton, to attend the funeral of their father. The girls are grief-stricken and refuse to be consoled. They were devotedly attached to their father and his death is a sad blow to them.

Dan Don't Drink.

St. Louis, Mo., June 25.—The death of Grover Cleveland recalled to several St. Louisans an incident of Cleveland's first visit to this city in 1878 which indicates the oft-repeated assertion he had no sense of humor was not true.

With Daniel Lamont, David R. Francis and other friends, Cleveland reviewed the parade of the Veiled Prophets from a balcony of the Lindell hotel. It was a cold night and seeing the president shiver one of the party had four drinks brought to the room adjoining the balcony. Cleveland tossed down a drink as the others hung back for him. To every one's surprise he followed this with a second glass. "Dan don't drink," Cleveland solemnly remarked with a wink as he looked at his secretary, who had been hungrily eyeing the glasses. Dan didn't.

A SOLUTION OF THE MYSTERIES

One May Be Had in Confession of John Hill.

TELLS OF KILLING THREE YOUNG GIRLS

Makes Confession to a Fellow-Prisoner.

The Confession, Unfortunately, Is Not Revealed to the Officials at Leavenworth, Kansas, Until After Hill Has Been Released—The Cincinnati Officials Are Informed. Will Endeavor To Catch Murderer.

Cincinnati, June 25.—Possibility of solution of Cincinnati's mysterious series of women murders, the victims of which were Mary McDonald, Lulu Mueller and Alma Steinigeweg, may lie in the report of a confession to the crimes by John Hill, twenty-eight, forger, Jacksonville, Illinois, who was recently released from the Kansas Industrial reformatory at Empria, now in the possession of the Cincinnati police department.

Hill declared in his confession to a fellow convict:

"I killed Mary McDonald, a domestic, twenty-four years old, April 30, 1904, and threw her body on the Baltimore & Ohio railroad tracks.

"I killed Lulu Mueller, nineteen, near Spring Grove avenue, October 2 or 3.

"I killed Alma Steiningeweg, eighteen, a telephone girl, near Spring Grove cemetery."

Police records show Hill's reported confession is correct as to the date of the death of Mary McDonald and that it varies but one day from the date of the finding of Lulu Mueller's battered body in Lover's lane.

Bound by fear, the boy convict who later told of Hill's confession, kept secret the confidences of his fellow prisoner until Hill was at liberty.

Chief of Police J. T. Taylor, of Leavenworth, Kansas, disclosed the details of the reported confession to the Cincinnati department.

BRYAN IS GOOD AS NOMINATED

Never a Surer Thing in Realm of Politics.

WILL HAVE MANY VOTES TO SPARE

There Will Be 1008 Votes in Convention.

Delegates Instructed for Bryan Number 484 and Those Pledged Are Sixty-Seven, Making a Total of 551—This Leaves 121 To Be Secured from the Uninstructed To Get the 672 Necessary to a Choice.

Denver, Col., June 25.—Bryan's nomination is as good as made. There never was a surer thing in politics. The Democratic national convention will be composed of 1,008 delegates. Of these, Bryan and his friends count upon having at least 750, and they say the number may run over 800. This estimate does not include the uninstructed New York delegation, which will be led to Denver by Murphy and Connors. The number necessary for a nomination is 672.

Delegates instructed for Bryan number 484, and those pledged to him sixty-seven, a total of 551. This leaves 121, the number required to make the necessary two-thirds, to be secured from the uninstructed.

The Bryanites declare that the needed 121 and more than 100 to spare are safely in camp.

Fight On Valorously.

Friends of Governor Johnson, of Minnesota, and Judge Gray, of Delaware, are fighting on valorously in the face of the landslide. In fact, they declare "there ain't no landslide." They look for comfort in the failure of Bryan to get 672 instructed delegates. They call attention to the fact that his friends everywhere were urged to have delegates instructed and so they claim the 484 that have such instructions to be pretty nearly the full measure of Bryan's strength. But to those who have observed the fight from the outside, it seems dead certain that Bryan has all the delegates he needs and more, too.

Governor Johnson's forces are particularly active. The governor is blessed with a circle of friends willing to work and fight and make sacrifices for him. They were first to open headquarters here. They raised his banner, sounded the battle cry and swooped into the fray as though there could be none other than a victorious finish. It is probably true, as has been stated, that they not only this convention in mind, but are looking forward to 1912.

Less of a Stir.

For Gray there has been less of a stir, but his friends declare that his name will go before the convention.

Bryan may have better luck than befell Taft in shaping the tail of the presidential kite. He will have more votes than were at the command of Taft, and will not have to face a strongly-organized opposition. It is doubtful whether he has made a choice for vice president. Word has come in what seems a direct line to the hill at Lincoln that his first choice is Judge Gray, and that he would give a hearty welcome, if Gray declined, to Governor Johnson. Nobody believes that either of them would accept second place and so the field is wide open for the prophets.

Bryan is said to have looked with kindly eye upon venerable Adlai Stephenson, of Illinois, who was elected with Grover Cleveland and defeated with Bryan, but it is not believed to be probable that he will be given serious consideration.

Long Chance for Speculation.

With Gray and Johnson out of the count, the honor may go to any one of a score of rising Democrats in the various sections that have been "mentioned." That is, it may go to any of them except Lieutenant Governor Chanler, of New York, or David R. Francis, of Missouri. Probably neither of them has aspirations for second place, but there is good reason for the belief that even if they had they would find the way to glory barred to them.

Some of the men who will figure in the settlement of the question are ex-Governor W. L. Douglass, of Massachusetts; C. A. Towne and Cornelius Pugsley, of New York; Frank S. Katzenbach, of New Jersey; John W. Kern, of Indiana; Congressman O. M. James, of Kentucky; Judson Harmon, of Ohio; Governor Joseph Folk, of Missouri, and W. H. Conrad, of Montana.

Kern is touted strongly because the Democrats figure they have a first-class chance to carry Indiana this year.

JEWISH STUDENTS IN RUSSIAN SCHOOLS

More Than a Small Percentage Will Be Excluded.

Vienna, June 25.—A despatch received here today from St. Petersburg says that the Russian minister of education has issued a decree limiting the number of Jewish students in Russian universities to three per cent. of the total enrollment and excluding them from medical, dental and all technical colleges.

The reason assigned for this step is that the Jews enroll themselves merely to spread revolutionary principles.

The minister of education recently excluded women from the universities. It is feared that the new edict will rekindle anti-Jewish prejudice and lead to outbreaks.

DEBARRED FROM MAILS BY A FRAUD ORDER

Oakland Wireless Company Up Against Uncle Sam.

Washington, June 25.—The Oakland Transcontinental Aerial Telegraph and Power company of Oakland and San Francisco, advertising new patents whereby it is possible to "talk around the world" by wireless, was today debarred from the mails by a fraud order. The promoters of the enterprise exhibited at their offices what purported to be wireless telephones. To the credulous, the "firm" sold stock in the enterprise for from $10 to $55 per share. A postoffice inspector discovered wires connecting the instruments.

MEYER FAVORED AS THE MANAGER

President Thinks He Is the Man for the Place.

Oyster Bay, N. Y., June 25.—Postmaster General Meyer is said to be the choice as campaign manager. It is reported that the president is favorable to Meyer's selection and he has been approved by Taft. At the conference to be held here Saturday between President Roosevelt, Secretary Taft, General Luke Wright and several members of the Republican national committee, it is expected the name of the campaign manager will be announced.

100 PERSONS THOUGHT LOST

Spanish Ship, Larache, on Rocks Near Corunna.

VESSEL HAS LIST OF 200 PASSENGERS

Believed That Only Half of Them Escape.

Vessel Is an Old Hulk—Is Bound from Cadiz to Muros, but Attempts To Put in at Corunna Owing to a Heavy Fog and a Rough Sea. Strikes Twice on Rocks and Sinks in Eight Minutes.

Corunna, June 25.—At least 100 persons are believed to have lost their lives in the sinking of the Spanish ship, Larache, which struck on the rocks off Corunna. Estimates of the number of passengers and crew vary, but it is thought the vessel had a total list of about 200, of whom not more than half escaped.

The vessel was an old hulk. It was bound from Cadiz to Muros, but attempted to put in here owing to a heavy fog and rough sea. It struck twice on the rocks. She sank in eight minutes.

The passengers created a wild panic in their rush for the life boats. Most of them succeeded in getting into the life boats but the sea was so rough that many of the small boats were wrecked.

A small fishing fleet near the scene of the accident went to the rescue and picked up sixty-five persons. The ship's captain, first officer and doctor were all lost.

Many of those who lost their lives were sucked under the sinking vessel and half the life boats could not put off.

Hansbrough Defeated.

Fargo, N. D., June 25.—United States Senator Hansbrough has been defeated for renomination at the Republican state primaries, according to the latest returns. T. F. Marshal, of the "insurgent" faction appears to be in the lead for the senatorial nomination.

SHAH OF PERSIA TO LOSE THRONE

Unless the Disorder in Land Is Suppressed.

THAT IS THREAT OF THE POWERS

His Uncle Will Be Enthroned in His Stead.

A Despatch States That the Rebels Are Marching Against Teheran and That the Shah Has Dispatched 5,000 Troops To Meet Them—Reinforcement Are Enroute to Tabriz To Shell Town.

St. Petersburg, June 25.—Unless Mohammed Ali Mirza, Shah of Persia, quickly restores order in his country, he will be dethroned by the powers and his uncle, Prince Zill-Es-Sultan, enthroned in his place. This warning has already been sent to the Shah by the Russian and English representatives, these two countries being the most vitally concerned. Other powers are willing to second this demand. It is believed that Russia and England will "have to make good" this threat, for reports from Teheran today are to the effect that the city and surrounding territory are still in a state of revolt.

His soldiers may hold the people in check for the present, but further outbreaks are imminent.

Demand Explanation.

Russia and England have, also, joined in a demand on the Shah for an explanation of the reported secret killing of scores of reformers.

A despatch received here today says that rebels are marching against Teheran from the north of Persia and that the Shah has dispatched 5,000 troops to meet them. Reinforcements are on the way to Tabriz under orders to shell the town unless the rebels yield.

Tabriz is the center of the northern uprising and has been the scene in the last few days of many outrages by Kurdish tribes. Their depredations have extended to Urmiah, the whole intervening territory being in a state of foment.

Fighting between the revolutionaries and the adherents of the reactionary party has been going on in Tabriz for the last three days.

Executions Ordered.

Teheran, June 25.—Seemingly indifferent to the enraged state of mind of the populace, the Shah continues to carry things with a high hand in the pillaged Persian capital. Today he ordered the execution of those who have had a part in the uprising.

Wholesale arrests are being made of the Anjumans and other popular leaders, many being condemned to death without trials. No evidence, save that of soldiers, is required.

Melek-El-Motakellemin, a preacher, and Djangir Khan, an editor, were hanged in the shah's camp. The fate of two other editors who were arrested is unknown, but it is feared that they, too, have been executed.

The shah's soldiers are in complete control of Teheran.

In an effort to cast the blame for the terrible conflict of Tuesday on the public, the shah has notified representatives of the powers that the Anjumans started the trouble by hurling bombs from the top of the parliament building into the ranks of the Cossacks.

The shah says he is not seeking a revocation of the country's constitution.

Special License Refused.

London, June 25.—Archbishop Canterbury has refused to grant a special license for the marriage of Madame Anna Gould and Prince Helie de Sagan, and it looks as though the couple would have to await the expiration of their three weeks' residence in England before the ceremony can be performed.

More Deputy Inspectors.

Columbus, O., June 25.—State Oil Inspector W. H. Phipps today appointed the following to be deputy oil inspectors:

W. F. Balsley of Napoleon; Bert T. Blume, Wapakoneta; Jesse T. Reese, Newark; Harry L. McClarran, Wooster; Fred C. Pfahl, Lorain, and Max S. Carey, Sidney.

No Reconciliation in Sight.

New York, June 25.—Frank J. Gould today declined to talk regarding his wife's suit for absolute divorce, papers in which were served on him yesterday. From this fact, it appears that all effort at reconciliation have proved futile. The suit is based on statutory grounds.

EX-PRESIDENT GROVER CLEVELAND DIES AT HIS HOME IN PRINCETON

Passes Away at Early Hour Wednesday Morning.

CONSCIOUS TILL NEAR THE FINAL SUMMONS

Only Mrs. Cleveland and Physicians at the Bedside.

PEACEFUL END FOR THE LATE STATESMAN

Funeral at Late Home Friday and Was Private.

It Is Some Time After Mr. Cleveland's Death That the News of the Passing of Only Ex-President Is Given Out—Distinguished Career Has Been That of the Deceased. Messages of Condolence and Sympathy to the Widow Are Many. An Outline of the Life of One of the Most Distinguished Men in the History of All America.

Princeton, N. J., June 24.—Stephen Grover Cleveland, the twenty-second president of the United States and the last ex-president, died at his home here at 8:40 this morning after a lingering illness that had caused him to be confined to his bed throughout the winter and spring, both here and at Lakewood, New Jersey.

When the end came only Mrs. Cleveland, the physicians and attendants were at the bedside. The Cleveland children are at the ex-president's summer home at Tamworth, New Hampshire, in the care of the maternal grandmother, Mrs. Perrine.

It was some time after Mr. Cleveland's death that the sad news was made public, the announcement coming in the form of an official statement signed by Drs. Bryant, Lockwood and Carnochan, which gave the direct cause of death as heart failure, pulmonary thrombosis and oedema.

It was also stated that Mr. Cleveland had been suffering from gastro-intestinal disorders and organic disease of the heart and kidneys.

Sudden Turn for Worse.

Mr. Cleveland took a sudden turn for the worse early Monday, but the news was kept from the public, and even while the ex-president was passing away, despatches were sent from this city stating that he was improving and that there was no real cause for alarm. A slight rally set in about midnight, but it was only of short duration, being immediately followed by a sinking spell that was at once recognized by Dr. Bryant and his associates as the beginning of the end. Shortly before daylight, although he was given up, it was a foregone conclusion that only a few hours of life remained to Mr. Cleveland. His vitality, sapped by his long illness and intense suffering, which had caused him to lose 150 pounds in weight, failed to respond to the efforts of the physicians and at 8:40 the end came.

Cleveland retained consciousness until ten minutes before he passed away. The end was not accompanied with great suffering. The heat of the past few days had greatly weakened the patient.

It had been planned by Mr. and Mrs. Cleveland until a few days ago to join their children at Tamworth, New Hampshire, but the trip was abandoned on Sunday, it having become evident that the sick man was not sufficiently strong to make it. It was not thought, however, until late last night, that his condition was so very serious, and the moment that Dr. Bryant recognized signs of a sinking spell, he hastily summoned Drs. Lockwood and Carnochan.

During the past two years, Cleveland's health had been failing but not until a year ago that his condition gave any cause for serious alarm. Although the nature of his illness was never made known, either by his physicians or the members of his family, it was generally believed that he was suffering from cancer of the stomach.

Removed to Lakewood.

Late last winter Cleveland was removed from Princeton to Lakewood, where his illness took such a turn for the bad that it was impossible to return him to his home at the close of the hotel's winter season, one wing of the hostelry being kept open for the accommodation of the distinguished patient. Alarming reports frequently came from the bedside and death often seemed to be imminent, but with the coming of better weather, the ex-president rallied, and a little more than a fortnight ago he was removed to his Princeton home in Princeton.

Throughout his stay at Lakewood, Cleveland was closely guarded not even his most intimate friends being permitted to see him. His physicians declined to discuss the case beyond a few vague statements that served only to increase uneasiness.

Either Dr. Bryant, who had for years been Mr. Cleveland's physician, or Dr. G. Rowe Lockwood, a New York stomach specialist, were in constant attendance upon him.

Princeton Gets News.

Princeton has been in a great state of excitement since the first news of the ex-president's death, and already there are signs of great grief and depression settling over the town. No man here was more highly respected and so widely beloved as the former president.

Pale and worn from her long vigil at the bedside of her husband, Mrs. Cleveland, however, is bearing up bravely. She is surrounded by many friends who are doing their best to comfort the bereaved woman.

Arrangements have been made for the two older children to return to Princeton immediately. On account of the excessive heat, the two younger ones will remain in the mountains in New Hampshire.

The funeral of the late ex-President Cleveland will be held Friday from the home in this city and will be private. Interment will be beside the grave of Ruth Cleveland, the first child born to Mr. and Mrs. Cleveland.

The scene in the bedroom immediately before and after the death cannot be recorded as the three physicians refused to describe Cleveland's last moments.

As soon as the widow could recover herself, she summoned Professor Andrew F. West, of Princeton university, an intimate friend, and neighbor, and Professor John D. Hibbins, also of Princeton.

They rendered whatever assistance they could.

Telegrams were sent to the children at Tamworth, and about a dozen other relatives, who are scattered all over the country.

A Distinguished Career.

Grover Cleveland—Stephen Grover Cleveland—was the twenty-second president of the United States. He was born at Caldwell, New Jersey, March 18, 1837. When he was three years of age, with his father, a Presbyterian minister, he moved to Fayetteville, New York, where the family resided until 1851, after which they moved to Clinton, leaving Grover in Fayetteville. He remained there about two years as a clerk in a village store. On his father's death in 1853, he went to New York and for about a year was bookkeeper and assistant teacher in the institution for the blind. Thence he moved to Buffalo in 1855, where he studied law and began its practice in 1859.

In 1863 Mr. Cleveland was appointed assistant district attorney for Erie county and in 1865 was the Democratic nominee for district attorney but failed in securing the election. From 1871 to 1871 he was sheriff of Erie county and in 1881 was elected mayor of Buffalo. The reform methods of administering the city's affairs instituted by him while filling that office, led to his election in the following year as governor of New York by a majority of 192,000 votes over his opponent, Judge Folger, the Republican secretary of the United States treasury.

Phenomenal Success.

This phenomenal success, as indicative of the probability of his carrying New York and of attracting the independent vote, secured him the Democratic nomination for the presidency in 1884, and in November of that year he was elected over James G. Blaine, the Republican candidate. Cleveland's administration, 1885 to 1889, was marked by great prosperity to the country at large, by the admission of four new states—Washington, Montana, North Dakota and South Dakota—to the union; by an extension of the reform in the civil service begun under his predecessor, Chester A. Arthur, and by a freer use of the veto power than had generally been exercised by any other president.

On the meeting of congress in December, 1887, Mr. Cleveland devoted his annual message mainly to the advocacy of a reduction in tariff duties in order to prevent the further increase of the surplus in the United States treasury, which was already threatened to cause financial difficulties.

This messages occasioned a prolonged discussion of the principles of protection and furnished the issue in the national political organization of 188 when Cleveland was renominated by the Democrats and Benjamin Harrison was chosen as the Republican candidate.

Defeated by Harrison.

Although Cleveland received a popular majority larger than he had had in 1884, Harrison had the greater number of electoral votes, and, accordingly, on March 4, 1889, Cleveland left the White House and removed to New York, where he engaged in the practice of law.

In 1892, however Mr. Cleveland was again nominated by the Democratic party, while Harrison was renominated by the Republicans. This year Cleveland defeated Harrison.

In 1896, th Democratic party having declared for the free coinage of silver in the platform of its national convention, Cleveland withheld his support from the ticket and platform.

After his second retirement from the White House, Cleveland took up his residence at Princeton, New Jersey.

Mr. Cleveland was elected a trustee of the Equitable Life Assurance society June 10, 1905, following the insurance investigation. He was also chairman of the Association of Life Insurance Presidents since January, 1907. He was also a member of the executive committee of the National Civic federation; a member of the American Philosophical society, American Historic association, and a trustee of Princeton university.

Marries Miss Folsom.

During his first term as president, Mr. Cleveland married Frances Folsom at the White House.

Cleveland's bitterest political enemies never questioned his sterling honesty and never impugned his courage. He had the courage of his convictions, a courage that enabled him to defy his own party and pass unheeded the loudest public clamor. No party influences, no public outcry, could swerve him in the slightest from a course of official action which he believed to be right. He made enemies in his party, but in the end those enemies respected if they did not love him. One great Democratic politician of the Northwest said once: "I love Grover Cleveland for the enemies he has made."

While there were no wars during Cleveland's two administrations, great national and international events occurred, chief of which was the beginning of the upbuilding of the United States navy.

The Famous Message.

It is related that Cleveland was in New York at the Victoria hotel after he had written his tariff message and before he had sent it to congress. He sent for several prominent Democrats to come to his hotel, and see him at 9 a. m. When they arrived, they found the president in bed and he drew from under his pillow a copy of the message and asked them to read it and tell him their views. They read it with exclamations of surprise and alarm. They warned the president that it was the eve of another national election, that he would be renominated, but that if he sent that message to congress, it would insure his defeat. It is related that the president listened to all the comment without a word until his friends had concluded, and then he answered:

"That message goes to congress next week," and then turned over and went to sleep.

And It Went.

The message went to congress and it electrified the country. The first result was the passage of the Wilson tariff bill, reducing many schedules in the tariff law, but did not go as far as Cleveland had recommended and he allowed the act to become a law without his signature.

It was Cleveland's tariff reform message and other official acts, especially the veto of private bills that caused his defeat in 1888.

Cleveland was the author of the famous political epigram: "Public offices are a public trust," and another equally good: "Public officers are the servants of the people."

During his first campaign for the presidency, a scandal in the early life of Cleveland was exploited by his political opponents, and the late Senator Gorman, of Maryland, then chairman of the Democratic national committee, went to see the candidate for president, and insisted that some answer to the charge must be made to the public, else the election was lost.

Tell the Truth.

"Tell the truth," Cleveland replied, and that sentence became the Democratic slogan for the remainder of the campaign.

Before the nomination in 1892, David B. Hill, then governor of New York, was an active candidate for the presidential nomination. He was the party leader in the state, had the state convention elect delegations at large. This afterwards became known as the "snap convention." The delegates were instructed for Hill, and at Chicago the entire seventy-two delegates from New York signed a public statement that Cleveland could not carry New York, and that his nomination would disrupt the Democratic party throughout the county. It was at that convention that Colonel Henry Watterson wrote that if Cleveland was nominated he would "lead the Democratic party through a slaughter-house to an open grave."

But in spite of these obstacles, Cleveland was nominated on the first ballot and elected by a large majority in the electoral college.

Free Silver Sentiment.

When Cleveland was inaugurated for his second term on March 4, 1893, the free silver sentiment was already sweeping the country. The Sherman law requiring the government to purchase 4,000,000 ounces of silver per month was depleting the gold reserve and panic was threatened. President Cleveland faced the situation by calling congress in special session in August of that year, and sending in a message demanding the repeal of the Sherman law. After weeks of debate and much political agitation, congress finally repealed the act and Cleveland ordered the sale of bonds to provide the treasury with a sufficient gold reserve.

The Chicago Strike.

In 1894, the American Railway union, led by Eugene V. Debs, as the sequel of a strike at the Pullman car shops in Chicago, attempted to tie up the railroads of the country and prevent the transportation of the United States mails. The late Governor Altgeld of Illinois sided with the strikers. He refused to call for troops. When the orders of the federal court were ignored, Cleveland promptly ordered to Chicago sufficient federal troops to preserve law and order. Railroad communication was promptly restored.

In 1895 England engaged in a serious dispute with Venezuela over the settlement of the boundary dispute. England threatened to use force, but President Cleveland sent congress a special message insisting upon the rigid enforcement of the Monroe doctrine and the appointment of an arbitration commission to settle the dispute. The British government accepted the proposal and the incident was passed.

Borrows To Hire Substitute.

When Cleveland was holding the office of assistant district attorney of Erie county the civil war was at its height. Two of his brothers were at the front in the union army. Upon him his mother and sisters were dependent for support. But although because of this he was unable to enlist himself, he borrowed money to pay for the sending of a substitute—a debt which it took him years to repay, and an incident which his political enemies made much of.

During Cleveland's first presidential term, he was married to Miss Frances Folsom. Mrs. Cleveland has the distinction of being the first wife of a president to have her wedding solemnized in the White Houses.

In the heat of the late insurance troubles, Cleveland was brought into the current of affairs when he decided, in June, 1905, that it was his duty to undertake the service of acting as one of the three trustees to hold the majority stock of the Equitable Life Assurance society. In his letter of acceptance, he said:

The Insurance Muddle.

"We can better afford to slacken our pace than to abandon our old simple American standards of honesty, and so shall be safer if we regain our old habit of looking at the appropriation to personal uses of property and interest held in trust in the same light as other forms of stealing."

The sporting qualities of the statesman and his love of sport did much to endear him to the average American. He was a sincere lover of nature and a sportsman—angler and hunter—of the capital sort. From time to time Cleveland delivered addresses to the students of Princeton university on political topics.

Five children were born to Mr. and Mrs. Cleveland. Four of them are living, Ruth having died at the age of twelve. The others are Esther, thirteen; Marion, eleven; Richard, nine; Frances four.

Genuine and General Sorrow.

New York, June 24.—Very genuine and general sorrow, coupled with the feeling that a valuable balance wheel for the country's business had been removed, followed the announcement of ex-President Cleveland's death in Wall street today. But little effect, if any, however, was noticeable in the prices of securities for Cleveland held no large blocks and his influence, while great, was rather in the composing of differences between the kings of finance than affecting the status of any particular issues.

Just in what manner the street will recognize his death has not yet been decided. President Thomas, of the New York stock exchange, declined to make any statement further than to say that no time had yet been taken to arrange for any sort of memorial. The board of governors of the exchange, this afternoon, will undoubtedly pass resolutions, and it may be that a short suspension of business on the floor will mark Wall street's respect for the dead.

The absence of Thomas F. Ryan at present in Europe makes it also a matter of uncertainty in what manner Cleveland's place on the board of trustees of the Equitable Life will be filled. Though for the past few months Cleveland had been too ill to take a great part in its government his name stood in the estimation of thousands of policy-holders as a guarantee of "fair play" in the conduct of its business, and who will fill that gap is today the concern of the street more than any of the other interests of the dead ex-president.

From the President.

Oyster Bay, N. Y., June 24.—Immediately upon the receipt of a telegram from Mrs. Cleveland announcing her husband's death, the president dictated the following reply:

"Mrs. Grover Cleveland, Princeton New Jersey.

"Your telegram shocked me greatly. Mrs. Roosevelt joins in very deep and sincere sympathy. I have, of course, abandoned my intention of starting for New London and the boat races so that if the funeral is either Thursday or Friday, I can attend. I can also attend if it is Sunday, but if it is Saturday, a number of men are coming here from various parts of the country on a business engagement which I cannot break. Will you direct someone to wire me when the funeral will be and where?

"Theodore Roosevelt.

"Oyster Bay, Long Island, June 24."

Taft Gets the News.

New Haven, Conn., June 24.—Secretary of War Taft, presidential candidate of the Republican party, was told of the news of Mr. Cleveland's death while he sat on the platform at the Yale commencement exercises today and during the singing of a psalm, wrote:

"I greatly regret to hear of Mr. Cleveland's death. He was a great man and a great president, and leaves this life with the love and high respect of all his countrymen.

"William H. Taft."

His Sister Informed.

Toledo, O., June 24.—Mrs. N. B. Bacon, sister of ex-President Cleveland, was informed of his death by a representative of the United Press. She was visibly affected on receiving the news, although she said she had been expecting the announcement for some time. No arrangements have been made by the family to attend the funeral but they will probably leave the city this evening.

For Formal Action.

New York, June 24.—A special meeting of the chamber of commerce of the state of New York will be held Friday next to take appropriate action regarding the death of former President Cleveland.

A meeting of the curb brokers has been called this afternoon to take formal action in expressing regret at the death of Grover Cleveland.

Will Attend Funeral.

Indianapolis, Ind., June 24.—Vice President Fairbanks said today that he probably would attend the funeral of Mr. Cleveland. He said: "Grover Cleveland was one of the ablest and most patriotic statesmen the country has produced. He was a many-sided man—a man of broad and generous sympathies. His influence was always for the good. He was indeed the very best type of public servant and private citizen."

Harmon Is Grieved.

Charlevoix, Mich., June 24.—When informed of the death of former President Grover Cleveland today, Judson Harmon said:

"Am grieved to learn of Mr. Cleveland's death, though it was not wholly unexpected. I had for him personal affection, as well as respect and esteem. His career was cast in trying times and his place among the great heroic figures of our history is assured."

Flag at Half Mast.

Columbus, O., June 24.—On receipt of news of ex-President Cleveland's death, Governor Harris ordered the flag over the state-house at half mast and despatched a telegram of condolence to Mrs. Cleveland. He will order all state offices closed during the hours of the funeral.

Grover Cleveland.

Notable Career of a Forceful American Who Made His Own Way.

Twice Elected President, He Became In His Last Years "The Most Distinguished Private Citizen In the World"—Always Dignified, but Not Wholly Devoid of Humor—With an Iron Courage and Remarkable Self Confidence He Seemed Always Prepared.

By ROBERTUS LOVE.

"THE most distinguished private citizen in the world," said a celebrated Republican ex-senator, introducing Grover Cleveland at the dedication ceremonies of the St. Louis world's fair in 1903.

Nobody disputed the characterization. Mr. Cleveland had spent two full terms in the White House, divided by an interim of private citizenship, and he had survived his retirement for years. He was not like an ordinary ex-president, who retires from one term or from two terms served consecutively. This man had suffered defeat after victory and had won victory after defeat. That record is unique in our history. It added to that high distinction which inheres in any man who has held the greatest elective office in the gift of the world's nations. It made him indisputably the most distinguished private citizen in the world.

But the ex-senator mentioned had still further justification. Ever since the ex-president retired to the classic shades of Princeton his distinction has widened as a man, as a personage, one might say as a "character" in the best sense of that term when it needs quotation marks to qualify its meaning.

Affectionately Known as Grover.

Early in life Mr. Cleveland discarded his first name, Stephen. Therefore he could not be called Steve by the people of the United States. But as the one great national character of his day he became respectfully and affectionately known as Grover. Everybody was interested in knowing what Grover was doing at his Princeton home. When Grover went fishing, everybody wanted to know how many he caught and if they were cats, suckers or flounders. When Grover went duck hunting, everybody waited eagerly to learn how many he bagged.

Even the simple story of the self preservation frog was highly diverting to the great public. This frog Mr. Cleveland was using for bait. He had not had a bite for an hour. Finally he happened to glance down at his feet, and there on a rock sat little Mr. Frog, with the hook in his skin, enjoying life in the open air.

Counting, at any rate, from the time when he first became president, Mr. Cleveland never evinced any of the personal magnetism qualities which are calculated to make people think of him by his first name, much less to "Teddyize" it. Mr. Cleveland was always a dignified person. More than that, he was essentially austere and ponderous. Of course he may have been quite otherwise when he went fishing. The statement refers to his public appearances. He gave the impression of being a mountainous mass of mind, moving slowly, but surely, toward its ultimate goal, and when he reached the goal he stayed there and went into camp. He did not get there by jumps or jerks, by impulsive catching at conclusions, but by the laborious method of feeling his way and treading carefully, though perhaps not softly. President Cleveland was a big thinking machine in constant operation, but so well oiled that he made no unnecessary noise. He took his work so seriously and found it so exacting that no time was left him for the lighter side of things, even if he had had the inclination. Yet he was not always devoid of humor.

At a White House reception somehow a seedy looking tramp got in line. He was immediately behind one Dr. Lucky, who was introduced to the president. Nobody was acquainted with the tramp. Both he and Mr. Cleveland seemed embarrassed for the moment, but the president rose to the occasion. Releasing the hand of Dr. Lucky, he grasped that of the tramp and said cordially:

"And you, I suppose, are Dr. Unlucky."

Messages to Congress Penned by Himself.

It is said that all the presidents together up to Mr. Cleveland's time did not leave so many state papers in their own handwriting as did this hard worker. Mr. Cleveland insisted upon attending personally to many affairs which other presidents turned over to their secretaries. His mind worked best through his arm and his finger tips. His messages to congress he wrote with his own hand, as, in fact, all his important state papers. Thus nobody could charge him with being a dictator.

President Cleveland's severe conception of dignity was indicated by his quarrel with Colonel Henry Watterson, the famous Kentucky editor. Once the president was too busy to go to the theater when young Mrs. Cleveland expressed a desire to hear Clara Morris. Colonel Watterson happened to be at the White House. The president requested him to escort Mrs. Cleveland, which the gallant Kentuckian was happy to do. Between the acts Mrs. Cleveland suddenly announced that she desired very much to have a chat with the noted actress. The colonel arranged for her to visit Miss Morris in the latter's dressing room. Delighted with her experience, Mrs. Cleveland enthusiastically told her husband about it as soon as the colonel took her home.

The president turned to Colonel Watterson and somewhat angrily reproached him for permitting the first lady of the land to visit an actress in her dressing room instead of having the actress call at the box. He had trusted to the colonel's age and discretion, he said, to protect Mrs. Cleveland from yielding to a "schoolgirl fancy" so undignified.

Grover Cleveland was the first Democratic mayor of Buffalo and the first Democratic governor of New York since the civil war. Then he became the first and only Democrat elected to the presidency since James Buchanan, who defeated John C. Fremont, the first Republican candidate, in 1856. These facts enhance his distinction.

Helped Fanny Crosby With Her Hymns.

From his boyhood Mr. Cleveland manifested those traits of iron courage which may be termed self confidence, so characteristic of his official career. Young Grover's first job away from home was a clerkship in a school for the blind. Fanny Crosby, the noted hymn writer, herself blind, was a teacher there. Young Cleveland used to assist her by taking down her poems in handwriting. The principal of the school upbraided Miss Crosby for utilizing Grover in that way. Grover heard of it.

"Look here," he said to the blind singer, "you have a perfect right to use my services in this way. Your hymns do much good for this school. You tell the principal so next time he objects."

Miss Crosby boldly stood up for her rights after that, and the principal meekly submitted, while the young amanuensis continued the penmanship practice which enabled him later along in life to write presidential messages legibly.

Mr. Cleveland made his own way in the world. His father, a Presbyterian minister, died when Grover was sixteen. The boy after his brief experience in the school for the blind started for Cleveland, O. It is said that the name of that city was its chief attraction for him. But he visited an uncle in Buffalo on his way west and was induced to remain in that city. Grover's mother when he left home gave him a little Bible. Daniel Lamont, who was private secretary to Governor Cleveland and later a member of President Cleveland's cabinet, told a highly interesting story of this Bible.

"I first saw it," said Mr. Lamont, "on a table in Cleveland's law office in Buffalo. When Mr. Cleveland became governor the little Bible was generally to be seen on the bureau in his bedroom in Albany. Just before his inauguration as president I found the book in his rooms at the Arlington hotel, Washington, and I carried it to Chief Justice Waite, requesting him to use it when he swore the new chief magistrate into office."

About 40,000 witnesses saw Grover Cleveland press his mother's gift to his lips on that memorable occasion.

Later the little Bible lay on Mr Cleveland's writing table in his library at Princeton. On the outside cover is inscribed in gilt letters the name "S. G Cleveland," and on the fly leaf in his mother's handwriting are the words, "My son, Stephen Grover Cleveland, from his loving mother."

Display of Self Confidence.

The late Senator Ingalls, himself a brilliant orator, once confessed that he was stricken dumb with wonderment by Mr. Cleveland's display of self confidence at his first inauguration. With 40,000 people in hearing and 70,000,000 waiting to read the words he was about to utter, this man, altogether new to Washington and to the national arena, stood forth to deliver his inaugural address offhand. He held in the palm of his left hand a scrap of visiting card on which he had noted the merest catchwords of his address. The sight of this scrap of card caused Senator Ingalls to say:

"Suppose his memory had failed him. Such things happen to speakers skilled by a lifetime of experience, and why not to Cleveland, a novice in the art? Yet he stood there, with all the confidence of a prophet of old, and without manuscript spoke for an hour to 70,000,000 people!"

This courage, this self confidence, characterized his entire career as president. He seemed always prepared. He had loaded his gun beforehand, and when he got ready to fire he fired. During his first term he vetoed 413 bills. This unprecedented exercise of the veto power astounded congress and caused the people to sit up and take notice. No adverse criticism swerved him. Among the bills vetoed were 297 private pensions. Cleveland, who helped to support his mother during the war on a meager salary as assistant prosecutor in Buffalo, had hired a substitute when he was drafted into the army. This was brought up against him by indignant Grand Army men, but he believed that the pension bills he was vetoing were improper under the laws, and he ignored the insinuations.

Mr. Cleveland devoted his entire congressional message in 1887 to the tariff. He characterized the then existing tariff laws as "vicious, inequitable and illogical." His bold stand for a reduction of duties contributed largely to his defeat for re-election the next year, though he received a majority of the popular vote.

It was in his second term that Mr. Cleveland's policy or principle of standing pat with his own convictions split his party wide open and made him millions of political enemies. He was unalterably in favor of the gold standard. In the summer of 1893 he called a special session of congress to repeal the Sherman act requiring the government to make large purchases of silver bullion. Succeeding chapters in the monetary struggle are of such recent history that it is unnecessary to mention them.

Perhaps the one act of President Cleveland which aroused the deepest indignation in some quarters and evoked the highest commendation from other quarters was the sending of federal troops to Chicago during the great railroad strike of 1894 "to prevent obstruction of United States mails" against the protest of Governor Altgeld of Illinois, who held that his state forces were adequate to cope with the situation.

Made Him a National Hero.

His vigorous assertion of the Monroe doctrine in the Venezuelan boundary case, even to the extent of inviting war with Great Britain, swept away partisan prejudices for the time and made President Cleveland a national hero.

"A public office is a public trust," in seven words, is Mr. Cleveland's noblest literary creation.

Time softens even political asperities. It is yet too early for unbiased history to be written around the Cleveland administrations, but one may venture the prediction that, when the scroll of history is made up, on the list of the greater American presidents will be the name of Grover Cleveland, "the most distinguished private citizen in the world" for many years toward the end of the nineteenth and at the beginning of the twentieth century.

A HALF BUSHEL OF JEWELRY AND MONEY

Cast at Feet of Lupton in Response to His Appeal.

Alliance, O., June 25.—Continuous night and day meetings of several hundred believers in the "Gift of Tongues" creed reached a climax last night at the camp revival near here when frenzied believers responded to Rev. Levi Lupton's call for help, by casting at his feet a half bushel of watches, jewelry and money. The revival is in full swing. The faithful pray, sing and shout. Trances, convulsions and stupors mark the reception of the spirit by different believers. Every person in camp looks forward to the repetition of miracles recorded in the bible.

All Young Men's Christian associations along the route will have a part in the event.

KNIGHTS OF PYTHIAS ENJOY NICE OUTING

Marion Lodge Members Go to Glenmary Park.

A BASEBALL GAME FEATURE OF AFFAIR

Marion Lodge, No. 70, Free and Accepted Masons, Celebrates the Festival of St. John the Baptist at the Masonic Temple—Secret Society Notes of Some Interest.

Marion Lodge, No. 402, Knights of Pythias, gave a picnic and dance at Glenmary park, Wednesday afternoon and evening. About 100 from this city were in attendance. The trip to Glenmary park was made in a special C., D. & M. car. The picnickers left here at 1:30 o'clock Wednesday afternoon and returned at midnight.

One of the features of the outing was a ball game between the married men and the bachelors. John H. Clark captained the former and Harry Mickley served as captain of the latter. Clark's team won by a score of eighteen to eight. W. T. Smith umpired the game and narrowly escaped being mobed as a result of several decisions.

Following supper, dancing was enjoyed until a late hour. The outing was one of the most pleasant ever held by the lodge. The committee on arrangements was composed of George McKinley, John Cleveland and Albert Howe.

A United Press wire from Reading, Pennsylvania, Thursday, says. The international convention of the Knights of St. John today passed a law providing for representation to the supreme body from every commandery under the jurisdiction of the central organization. The present system of insurance will continue. The ladies auxiliary elected the following officers: President, Mrs. Lovis A. Zagg, Columbus, Ohio; first vice president, Mrs. Theresa Bennet, Rochester, New York; second vice president, Mrs. Rosa Rotterman, Dayton, Ohio; secretary, Mrs. Joanne White, Newport, Kansas; treasurer, Mrs. Anna V. Brossan, Cincinnati; trustees, Mrs. Ellen Rauderbanth, Lancaster, Ohio, and Mrs. Annie McCullen, Philadelphia.

The festival of St. John the Baptist was appropriately observed by Marion Lodge, No. 70, Free and Accepted Masons, Wednesday evening. Rev. J. P. Currin delivered a short address which was heard with interest.

The master's degree was conferred on one candidate. Refreshments were served.

Only the routine business was transacted at a regular meeting of the Ancient Order of Hiberians held Wednesday evening.

The members of Marion Commandery, No. 36, Knights Templars, are holding a special meeting at the Masonic temple Thursday. The orders of the red cross, temple and Malta are being conferred on a large class. The work was continued throughout that afternoon and evening.

Women Bound Over.

Cora Wagner and her niece, Orpha Bender, who were arrested here last Saturday for the authorities at Crestline where they were wanted to answer to a charge of stealing $272.50 from William Long, pleaded guilty when arraigned before Mayor Glosser at that place and were bound over to the grand jury. They furnished bond in the sum of $500 and were released.

THEY COUNT ON FORAKER

Republicans Look to Him To Stump State;

TO MAKE EFFORT OF HIS ENTIRE LIFE

In the Interests of Cause of Republicanism.

There Have Been Recent Conferences Among Influential Republicans on National Affairs, and They Have Tended Strongly To Bring About This Result—Foraker Will Probably Be Supported for Senator.

Washington, June 24.—That Senator Foraker will go on the stump in Ohio and make the effort of his life to carry that state for the Republican ticket, is confidently believed by Republicans high in the councils of the party. There have been recent conferences among influential Republicans on national affairs, and they have tended strongly to bring about this result. On the other hand, it is hoped by his friends that Senator Foraker is to have the support of Mr. Taft and other leaders in Ohio politics for the senatorship.

As soon as the convention had nominated Taft and Sherman the problem involved about Mr. Foraker's campaign in behalf of the negro soldiers of the Twenty-fifth regiment became a matter of especial interest to the Republican leaders and was one of the first things to receive attention. It was recognized that unless the negro voters of Ohio should turn out and give their full voting strength to the Republican ticket that state might be endangered. Even should 50 or 75 per cent of them remain at home and not vote at all Republican supremacy in that state would be jeopardized. For that reason it was insisted upon that Mr. Foraker should actively go on the stump and make at least one or two speeches in which he would direct his remarks toward the interests of the negro voters. In this speech it is believed he will advise them that their only hope for legislation enabling the president to reinstate the negro troops will be in securing a Republican congress, for no such legislation would result from a Democratic congress. Not only that, but a Republican president, he will tell them, is their only hope of fair treatment.

THE MURDERER CONFESSES CRIME

Police Say Charles Spach Admits Killing Arline Knisely.

New Philadelphia, O., June 24.—Charles Spach, forty-eight, confessed on his deathbed, the police state, that he killed Arline Knisely, nineteen, and fired the ship which proved fatal to himself last Friday night. Spach died Tuesday at 4 p. m. in Union hospital.

Jealousy is the motive the authorities ascribe for the double tragedy. Arline Knisely's body was exhumed by order of the sheriff and chief of police, Tuesday afternoon, and Drs. Hendershott and Knisely held an autopsy. They found nothing to change the police theory that Spach murdered her.

Robert C. Stueve was discharged at his formal hearing before Mayor Schell Tuesday afternoon.

PUT THE CAN ON SUNDAY FUNERALS

That's What the Cemetery Superintendents Hope To Do.

Toledo, O., June 24.—There will be no more Sunday funerals in Ohio if board of public service and cemetery trustees of the cities and villages accept the resolution passed by the Ohio Association of Cemetery Superintendents and Officials condemning the burial of the dead on the Sabbath.

Sunday funerals, it was declared were made the occasion for ostentatious display, were expensive, and interfered with the rights of cemetery patrons visiting the cemeteries.

This action was taken by the cemetery association, which is holding 114 annual convention in this city.

M'KINLEY HOME FOR A HOSPITAL

Purchaser Gives Home to Sisters of Charity.

Canton, O., June 24.—Charles Lang, acting for Mrs. Rosa Klorer, who purchased the McKinley home, has announced that Administrator Felix M. Boff of the Cleveland Catholic diocese had authorized the sisters of charity to proceed with the establishment of a hospital in the McKinley home in acceptance of Mrs. Klorer's offer to donate the place.

Some objection had been made by Canton people to the convention of the old homestead into a hospital.

FUNERAL PYRE OF CIRCUS BILLS

Charles Rench, Old-Time Clown, Commits Suicide.

Columbus, O., June 24.—Charles Rench, forty-eight, an old-time circus performer, at whose antics millions of persons had laughed, met his death in a funeral pyre of old circus lithographs in his room at No. 276 south Front street, about 10:30 o'clock this morning. His body was burned almost to a crisp before it was recovered from the furnace the firemen found raging in his room.

Mrs. Kate Deaver, his sister, at whose home he lodged almost lost her own life in her efforts to save him.

For many years Rench traveled with the big circuses of the country as a clown, and was one of the best tumblers in the business. He continued at the work until two years ago, when shortly after an engagement at Madison Square garden, New York, his mind gave way.

Coroner Murphy was called and the body was removed to the morgue. The origin of the blaze is unknown, but it was either accidental, or started by Rench, himself, to end his life. The latter theory is given credence by his resisting his sister in her efforts to rescue him.

CHOLERA IN CAMP IN THE PHILIPPINES

Half Dozen Deaths Result from the Disease.

Manila, June 25.—Cholera which has been ravaging the Pangsanan province of the island of Luzon and parts of other islands has now broken out among the troops at Camp Gregg. A half dozen deaths have occurred in the camp, which is now under quarantine.

In Pangsanan province new cases are developing at the rate of 100 a day and the deaths have averaged fifty a day. The fatalities at present exceed this figure.

A SPANISH WAR VESSEL AT HAVANA

First Vessel To Visit Cuban Waters In Ten Years.

Havana, June 25.—The Spanish training ship, Nautilus, the first Spanish war vessel to enter Cuban waters in ten years, arrived Wednesday, twenty days overdue. The city was gaily decorated in honor of the event. By the terms of the Paris treaty, which marked the close of the Spanish-American war, no Spanish warship could enter Cuban waters for ten years.

Change Hospital Districts.

Columbus, O., June 24.—The state board of charities has rearranged the state hospital districts. The district of Columbus hospital, which is now overcrowded, will be reduced by two counties. Fairfield and Pickaway counties will be thrown into the Athens district. Ashtabula county will be taken from the Cleveland district and put in the Massillon district. No other change will be made in the Athens district. Logan county will be taken from the Toledo district and placed in the Dayton district. No other changes will be made in those districts.

Cashier Short; Ends Life.

Columbus, O., June 24.—Harry Huggett, cashier of the People's bank of the East Side, was found dead in an open field in Bullitt park, a suburb, with a bullet hole in his head. Indications pointed to suicide. Huggett was last seen at the bank last Saturday night, when he said he was ill and was going home. Investigation has developed an alleged shortage of about $5,000 in his accounts at the bank.

Blinds Wife In Play.

Bellefontaine, O., June 24.—S. C. Knepper, cashier of a Belle Center bank, and his young bride were playfully throwing water on each other on the lawn at their home. Mr. Knepper picked up a cup of liquor which he thought was water and dashed it in the face of his wife. The cup contained lye, and one of her eyes is destroyed and the other injured and her face is scarred for life.

Cleveland Woman Prostrated.

Cleveland, O., June 24. — With the thermometer registering 92 degrees, Cleveland suffered the hottest June day on record since June 24, 1874, when the mark was 96. Mrs. Amelia Schwab dropped dead, a victim of the heat, and prostrations were reported from various parts of the city.

Killed Stealing Ride.

TAFT LEADS THE PARADE

Is Central Figure at the Yale-Harvard Game.

IMMENSE CROWD PRESENT FOR EVENT

Some To See Game, Some To See Secretary.

Taft Is Cheered to the Echo on the Slightest Provocation, and with Classmates Enters into the Enthusiasm of the Occasion—Sees Team from Alma Mater Wrest Game from Old Rivals.

New Haven, Conn., June 24.—Secretary Taft was the central point of interest at the annual ball game between the Blue and the Crimson. His cup of happiness was filled to overflowing, for not only was the crowd a record-breaker in his honor and the classes the noisiest ever in their dances upon the green sward, but Yale whipped her rival by the score of 3 to 0 in a game which was full of better playing than either team has shown this season. As an omen of good luck Secretary Taft, marching with Judge Hollister in the front rank of his class, and immediately following a band which played the stirring Yale airs, and flanked on either side by the stars and stripes and the banner of the class of '78, marched twice around the ball field in full view of more than 14,000 wildly cheering men and women and followed by the reunion classes, numbering several hundred young men. The secretary was loyal to his class, as he said he would be, and disdained to leave it when finally it was ushered into one of the stands on the westerly side of the field under the towering football stand.

As the familiar figure of the secretary came from aroun one of the stands thousands of people gave many lusty yells and bands massed behind the stands waiting for them to come into view burst into music. The class of '78, with Mr. Taft at its head, swung onto the field, and then began the procession, which for more than 30 minutes was one great moving band of color and action. Stand after stand swung into unison of cheering under the leadership of men with megaphones as Mr. Taft and his classmates went by.

The ball game was a good one. The intensity of the moments as they passed when Yale was only one run ahead of Harvard for many innings was a restraining factor on the spirits of the enthusiastic young men in the stands. But when in the seventh Yale cut loose and scored two runs the Yale men made up in a few minutes for all the time they had held their exuberation in bounds. Secretary Taft's tribute to the team and its captain came in the first inning, when Tad Jones stepped to the bat. Up rose the secretary and the class with him, and the band in front played "For God, For Country and For Yale," and one more wave of cheering swept round and round the field.

As soon as the game was over Secretary Taft passed out of the stand and in the midst of a knot of friends he shook hands with a great many acquaintances. Then he walked out on the field, in the center of which a burlesque automobile race was being carried out, and then, under the leadership of the band, he and the others marched to a car which was in waiting and which conveyed the party to the home of President Hadley.

Those city officials of Columbus who are now drawing fines and four-year tickets to the penitentiary may possibly have come to the conclusion that, after all Honesty is the best policy '

The principal and pupils of a Philadelphia school are making an "unique chair for Taft no nails screws or glue being used in it construction They probably realized that a section of a solid second growth hickory log would probably come nearer meeting possible requirements

"The silk petticoat says Mrs Kneffen president of the Women's Trade Union league of St Louis 'has caused the downfall of hundreds of girls The swish of the garment renders her liable to two different points of attack—extravagance and the suspicion which a man naturally will entertain toward a girl wearing a garment which he knows she cannot afford What a world of truth there is in that statement! But the saddest thing about it is that there are hundreds and thousands of pure young girls who will not believe it till too late

'A Nevada girl named Dollar the Toledo Blade tells us is to marry a man named Scantz which is one way of settling the money question Oh! we don't know! Now if the names had been reversed it would look like a good business proposition but in that event the officiating parson might be laid open to a charge of counterfeiting

There's one thing for which we may be grateful this campaign is assuming that the Nebraska colonel will be the other nominee there will be an utter absence of all that log cabin rot which would have filled the columns of the press had some other fellows been the nominees

MR TAFT'S NOMINATION AND COMING ELECTION

Of course it is Taft Nobody else ever had a look in after President Roosevelt unalterably turned his back on another term and gave the powerful weight of his influence and popularity to the great war secretary But one of only two things could happen at Chicago One was the renomination of President Roosevelt the other that which is now recorded The better choice has been made Secretary Taft has not the strength of votes which might have been commanded by his chief but he is as strong as any other Republican in the list of availables and he will be a more trusted chief executive by all classes of people than the present distinguished occupant of the presidential chair Mr Taft is as honest a fearless and as capable as his popular chief He is not so strenuous not so expressive but fully as trustworthy He has not shone at his best in the terrific campaign for nomination Circumstances put him in the shadow of his chief for much of his strength lay there and conditions have made conspicuous from one point of view or obscure from another and the country has not been able to accurately measure the real Taft He is a big man a good man an able man an experienced man He will make a great president The square deal is as safe in his hands as it was with Lincoln Honesty is as sure with him as it has been with Roosevelt

Men may find fault with the campaign for nomination but the truth is not to be hidden—any other candidate would have availed himself of the Roosevelt aid and rejoiced at his rare fortune in having it The political wisdom that won a triumph at Chicago will lay the plans for a victory at the polls The unavoidable wounds of a vigorous contest will be rightfully healed, and the September activities of a campaign will begin with a united party and confidence that leads to success Mr Taft will win and he will be a great president He will escape the errors of haste and reach the triumphs of honesty and capacity

The death of our only ex president marks the passing of a man whose high worth is much more appreciated now than when he occupied the presidential chair but whose true greatness will only be appreciated in years to come when the historian rendered impartial by time will appraise his works at their real worth

Grover Cleveland was a great man and a great and patriotic American While to others may be given the praise at present history will show that it was Grover Cleveland who forced the old world to recognize American predominance on the American continents and it was during his administration that the seed was planted which has given the United States a real navy enforcing her recognition as a world power

At the time of the accident Mr and Mrs Clements were driving to the home of Nathan Smith the grandfather of Mrs John H Clark of this city Thursday Mrs Clark called up the Smith home by telephone to learn of the old lady's condition and was informed that her hair had turned a pure white in a single night Her eyes are still almost twice their normal size but her mind is clear and physicians say she will recover She will be a nervous wreck however

By what she believes God given power Mrs Clements was able to hold on to the roots of a tree until rescued Her clothes were whipped into strips by the crushing waters and her body was badly bruised and lacerated She prayed to God to save her and she prayed for the soul of her husband whom she knew had drowned when she heard him strangling

ANSON CLEMENTS IS DROWNED IN SCIOTO

Mrs. Clements Rescued After Five Hours.

CLINGS TO A TREE UNTIL DISCOVERED

Aged Woman Is Found by Boys, Who Secure Help—She Will Recover. Terrible Accident Near Hepburn Tuesday—Buggy Upset into Raging Torrent.

LaRue, June 24.—[Special.]—Anson Clements, eighty years old, was drowned and his wife, seventy-eight years old, was rescued by boys after having clung five hours to the roots of a tree, near Hepburn, Tuesday. Their buggy upset while driving between the Scioto river and Painter's creek, the road being submerged by the overflowing streams. The horse got off the roadway and the buggy was upset near the edge of the river bank. Mr. and Mrs. Clements were carried swiftly into the river's bed. The woman grasped the projecting roots of a large tree as she was hurled down stream, and heard her husband strangling in the water. She looked around, but did not see him. She saw the horse drown.

The story of Mrs. Clements' escape from death is thrilling in the extreme. The acident occurred about 10 o'clock in the morning and the old lady was not rescued until 3 o'clock in the afternoon. Her cries for help were heard at Hepburn less than a quarter of a mile away, but those who heard her thought some one was calling sheep. Finally, three or four boys ventured in swimming a short distance from where Mrs. Clements was clinging to the roots of the tree. She saw them and cried for help. She waved her hand at them. The boys feared to go near her. When one of them, bolder than the rest, did come within speaking distance, she told him to go for help. The alarm was soon given and the aged woman was rescued. She was then so exhausted she could scarcely speak. Within a short time her strength would have failed entirely and she, too, would have drowned. How she ever managed to hold on to the tree roots as long as she did is beyond the understanding of her rescuers.

It was at first thought that Mrs. Clements could not possibly survive, but upon being removed to her home she revived, and attending physicians say she will recover. "I know my husband is dead, because I heard him strangle in the water, and I saw the horse drown," she said.

All of Tuesday night men dragged the Scioto river for the body of Mr. Clements, but it was not recovered this morning. The body of the horse and parts of the buggy were found in the river a mile below the scene of the accident.

When the acident occurred Mr. and Mrs. Clements were driving from their home, one mile and a half northeast of Hepburn, to the home of Nathan Smith, half a mile west of Hepburn.

NEWTON DAVIS ASKS POINTED QUESTIONS

LaRue Man Gives Attorney General Brain Puzzlers.

Newton Davis, of LaRue, who deals in automobiles, has written a letter to Attorney General Wade H. Ellis, in which he calls attention to a noticable defect in the recently-enacted state automobile law.

Under the law every dealer is required to take out a license for each model of machine handled. Inasmuch as Mr. Davis deals in second-hand machines, as he has a right to do under the law, and is likely to have every possible kind of model in his stock during the year, he wants to know what kind of a license he will have to take out, or whether or not he will be compelled to take out a series of licenses.

As yet, Mr. Davis has received no reply from the attorney general, but the defect in the law has been given to the public through the office of the attorney general.

The letter of Mr. Davis also asked some other questions, which have to do with the constitutionality of the law. He wanted to know why it costs $3 a year to operate an electric machine for the pleasure of the owner, while there is no tax on a machine operated for commercial purposes.

MESSAGE DELIVERED AHEAD OF SCHEDULE

Unusual Feat of the Y. M. C. A. Boy Runners.

RUN FROM CLEVELAND TO CINCINNATI ENDS

The Boys Cover the Distance in Forty Hours and Fifty-Eight Minutes. Schedule Beaten by Six Hours and Two Minutes—The Message Delivered Wednesday Morning.

A United Press wire from Cincinnati says:

Mayor Johnson's message to Mayor Markbreit, carried across the state by Y. M. C. A. boy couriers, was delivered at the city hall in Cincinnati at 3:58 a. m. Wednesday. The message left Mayor Johnson's hands in Cleveland city hall at 11 o'clock Monday morning, making the running time between the two cities forty hours and fifty-eight minutes.

It was carried the entire distance by Y. M. C. A. boy runners, usually a mile to a boy. It was brought from Hamilton to the Cincinnati Y. M. C. A. by Hamilton association boys. Campbell Graff, of that association, did the last lap of two miles, which landed it at the Cincinnati Y. M. C. A. There it was immediately taken up by Alfred Clark, who delivered it at city hall.

The runners beat the scheduled time by six hours and two minutes, so that Mayor Markbreit was not on hand to receive it personally. Instead it was delivered to the police department and locked up in the safe and delivered to Mayor Markbreit when he arrived at the city hall later in the morning.

The delivery of the message completed the longest relay race yet undertaken by Y. M. C. A. boys.

"We feel proud of the accomplishment," said E. J. Schulte, manager of the boys' department of the Cincinnati Y. M. C. A., who had charge of the Cincinnati end of the run.

He and Clark stayed up all night waiting for the message. The youthful runner did not allow a small thing like that to interfere with business, however. He was on hand at the law office of Renner & Renner, where he is employed, bright and early Wednesday. The Hamilton boys returned to Hamilton in an automobile immediately after the race was concluded.

The message from Mayor Johnson of Cleveland to Mayor Markbreit of Cincinnati, carried across the state by Y. M. C. A. runners, read as follows:

"Hon. Leopold Markbreit,
"Mayor of Cincinnati.

"My Dear Mayor:

"Cleveland sends heartiest greetings and best wishes to the Queen City and to the Y. M. C. A. boys who take part in the cross-the-state relay.

"Yours sincerely,
"Tom L. Johnson,
"Mayor of Cleveland."

AN ITALIAN INJURED AT THE ERIE TRANSFER

Man's Left Leg Is Fractured in an Accident.

CHANGES MADE IN CREWS AND ENGINES

Stuyvesant Fish To Retire from All Interest in the Illinois Central, Which He Serves Twenty Years as President—Harriman in Control. Some Railroad Items.

Joseph Gymccione an employe at the Erie transfer suffered an accident Wednesday afternoon while at work. He was assisting in the moving of some heavy merchandise when his load got away from him, falling on him in such a manner as to catch his left leg under it. At first it was thought that the man was seriously hurt. The ambulance was called and he was removed to the Dr. C. E. Sawyer sanatorium, where an examination showed that he had suffered only a slight fracture of the member.

Among the other changes that are made in the engine crews of the Erie, Engineer J. B. Murphy, and Engineer Freer, who have been running respectively on Nos. 3 and 4 and Nos. 15 and 10, are now scheduled for Nos. 13 and 14. Charles Hall and James Murphy, both engineers running between Marion and Kent on Nos. 13 and 14 have been assigned to Nos. 10 and 15 between Galion and Kent.

Engineers Wright and Dando who have been pulling Nos. 3 and 4 between Marion and Dayton have had their work changed and Engineer Walker will assist them in hauling Nos. 3, 4, 15 and 10 on the Nypano. These engineers with their firemen are to alternate on runs between Marion and Dayton and Galion and Dayton on the above named trains. As far as Nos. 16 and 9 are concerned the local crews are not affected. As to trains Nos. 3 and 4 between Marion and Kent there are no changes except that Engineer Shade succeeds Engineer Murphy and runs opposite to Charles Allen.

A United Press wire from Chicago Thursday says: It is announced that within the last few weeks, Stuyvesant Fish, formerly president of the Illnois Central railroad, has sold approximately 10,000 shares of his Illinois Central holdings and with the liquidation of the balance, something like 2,500 shares, will discontinue all interest in the railroad of which he was president more than twenty years. Fish began the building of the Illinois Central properties about thirty years ago, and his administration covers a remarkable period in the railroad history of the country. His supremacy never was questioned until the summer of 1906, when E. H. Harriman threw down the gauntlet and after a bitter fight of a year and a half, succeeded in wresting control of the road. The unloading of the Fish holdings is given as the cause of the fluctuations in the securities. Yesterday the stock sold down to 125⅞, but 3⅜ above the lowest point reached this year.

A United Press wire from Columbus today says: Judge Sater, of the federal court, today, in the suit of William J. Courtney, of New York, and the Citizens' National bank, of Springfield, against the Detroit, Ironton & Toledo Railway company, headquarters at Detroit, appointed Benjamin S. Warren, George K. Lavell and Thomas D. Rhodes, receivers for that portion of the property held in Ohio.

The plaintiffs charge insolvency and that the defendant is indebted to them in an aggregate of $180,000.

PROCEEDING BEGUN IN COMMON PLEAS COURT

Suit To Set Aside Alleged Will of Evan Hughes.

DIVISION OF THE PROPERTY UNEQUAL

Evan Hughes, Jr., Receives Nearly the Entire Estate Which Is Valued at $15,000—Some Children Given but Ten Dollars Each—Emma E. Baker Gets a Divorce.

Mary Decker, Margaret Ellen Biggerstaff, Leah Johnston, Sallie Court, Perry Hughes and Mary Davids, through their attorneys, Mouser & Quigley, brought suit in the common pleas court, Wednesday, to set aside what is alleged to be the last will and testament of Evan Hughes. The plaintiffs claim that the paper writing admitted to probate is not the last will and testament of the decedent. The defendants are David Hughes, executor; Evan Hughes, Jr., a minor, and David Hughes and Kate Tobin.

June 14, 1908, Evan Hughes, father of the plaintiffs, died, leaving an estate worth $15,000. June 20, a will bearing date of May 28, 1907, was admitted to probate. In this will Evan Hughes, Jr., is left practically the entire estate, while to Margaret Ellen Biggerstaff is bequeathed $100, David Hughes $25, and each of the remaining six children is given $10.

After having brought suit for divorce the third time, Emma E. Baker was awarded a decree by Judge Babst, Tuesday afternoon, on the ground of three years' wilful absence. The defendant, John Baker, and the plaintiff were married January 30, 1883, and had not lived together for more than ten years.

Judge Babst overruled a motion for a new trial in the suit of Prosecuting Attorney John H. Clark against County Recorder John A. Key and others, Tuesday afternoon.

Because there was no evidence to show that Samuel McNay "stopped, looked and listened," Judge B. G. Young arrested further testimony from the jury, Wednesday afternoon, in the common pleas court, and directed a verdict for the defendant in the $10,000 damage suit of Thomas A. Gruber, administrator of the estate of Samuel McNay, against the C., C., C. & St. L. Railway company.

About ten witnesses were examined, including the dead man's widow. The evidence showed that as McNay stooped to pick up a stone to throw at a dog which was following his wife he was struck by a Big Four flyer at a street crossing in the village of Caledonia. In the examination of the plaintiff's witnesses it was not shown that the decedent used any caution when approaching the railway tracks. For this reason, when all the witnesses for the plaintiff were examined, the court declared it would not be necessary to receive any testimony on the part of the defendant.

McNay was killed, June 24, 1903, at Caledonia. In suit of his administrator, begun June 20, 1907, it was claimed that he met death as a result of carelessness on the part of the railroad company; that, contrary to the village ordinance, the train was running at a rate of speed of sixty miles an hour, and that the decedent had no chance of escaping death before it.

Attorney H. N. Quigley represented the railway company.

Laura May Morrison, through her attorneys, Copeland & Bartram, instituted suit for divorce from William Morrison, Thursday, in the common pleas court. They were married December 12, 1906, in this city, and have no children. She charges him with extreme cruelty and gross neglect of duty. According to the plaintiff's petition the only thing the defendant ever bought her since their marriage was a pair of shoes.

The plaintiff avers that the defendant is a strong farmer capable of earning a good living. She says he owns a home at Ashley, Delaware county, valued at $1,000. She wants a decree of divorce and reasonable alimony.

The suit of the Sulpho-Magetic Springs Sanatorium company against the Assurance company of America is being tried before a jury in the common pleas court.

REGARDLESS OF PUBLIC OPINION

Grover Cleveland Always Followed the Path of Duty.

IS EULOGIZED BY A FORMER PARTNER

Francis Lynde Stetson Knew Him Long and Well.

He Describes the Scene, When, as a Candidate Statesman, He Was Advised To Keep Away from Free Silver Issue for Political Reasons. Cleveland Refuses To Shirk His Obligation as a Patriotic Citizen.

New York, June 25. — "Were I to select one quality which more conspicuously than the many others entitled him to the love and regard of his countrymen, I should say that Grover Cleveland was the purest-hearted patriot I have ever known," said Francis Lynde Stetson, who was associated with Mr. Cleveland in the practice of law. Continuing, Mr. Stetson said: "In his consideration and decision of public affairs, without exception, he was guided and controlled by what he believed to be the best interests of his country. Neither the wishes of his friends nor even his own personal desires were permitted to determine his decisions. This essential quality was clearly seen by the poet's vision and finely phrased by the poet's pen when Mr. Lowell described him as the pilot 'Who held his rudder true.'"

Mr. Stetson pointed out that the room in which he was sitting was once Mr. Cleveland's office. "It was in this room," he said, "that one of the most characteristic instances in Mr. Cleveland's career took place. The day before the big anti-free silver meeting in Cooper Union—I forget the date—a gentleman of great influence who now lives in this city came to him to discuss the situation. Both were strongly opposed to the free silver movement and the talk naturally turned in that direction.

"Mr. Cleveland had an engagement to speak at the meeting, but for some reason could not go. 'Are you going to send a letter?' asked the gentleman.

"'What do you think about it?' asked Mr. Cleveland.

"'I should not,' said the gentleman in reply. 'I regard such a step as needless. Your position is well known. Nothing you can say at this time will put you more definitely upon record, and I think it might cause a needless embarrassment to your friends if you were to take part in the meeting, either by presence or letter.'

"Mr. Cleveland said nothing in reply for a time. Then taking off his big glasses he turned round and looked this gentleman straight in the eyes.

"'I am a citizen of the United States,' Mr. Cleveland said to him. 'I am a citizen of the state of New York and of the city of New York. Naturally I ought to take the part of a citizen in the affairs of the city, and especially upon a matter which is of so deep an import. I deem it my duty as a citizen to do so. I regard the expression of opinion in a matter of so great an importance as this of more importance than personal matters. It is said that I ought not to go there, nor to write a letter of any sort upon this matter of supreme importance because it might embarrass my nomination. I am going to write a letter to be read at that meeting — and the presidency can go to hell.'

"Mr. Cleveland did write—his letter is history. In outspoken and burning words he stated his position upon the free silver movement. He said then, as he believed since, that 'free coinage of silver was wrong and dangerous.' Nobody has forgotten it."

Bryan's Statement.

Lincoln, Neb., June 25.—William J. Bryan wrote the following tribute to Former President Cleveland soon after being notified of his death:

"The death of ex-President Grover Cleveland brings to a sudden end the phenomenal career of one of the strongest characters known to the political world during the present generation. Like every commanding figure, he had zealous supporters and earnest opponents, but those who differed from him were as ready as his warmest friends to concede to him the possession of elements of leadership to an extraordinary degree. He was deliberate in action, firm in conviction, and ever ready to accept responsibility for what he did. Few men have exerted a more positive influence upon those associated with them. We are not far enough from the period in which his work was done to measure accurately his place in history, but the qualities which have made him great are a part of the nation's heritage, and universal sorrow is felt at his death."

Sentiments of regret were expressed by Norman E. Mack of Buffalo, who was visiting with Mr. Bryan when news came of Mr. Cleveland's death. Mr. Mack, who knew Mr. Cleveland well when he lived at Buffalo, said his death was a shock to the nation.

Olney Speaks as Friend.

Falmouth, Mass., June 25.—Richard Olney, secretary of state in Cleveland's cabinet, was informed by telephone at his summer home of the death of Mr. Cleveland. He expressed deep regret at the news, but requested that he be not urged to say anything further at the moment. Later Mr. Olney made he following statement: "Mr. Cleveland's death is not a surprise, but comes, nevertheless, as a severe shock and an irreparable loss. The loss is nothing less than national, and his countrymen everywhere, irrespective of party, will realize that there has gone from us a great and notable figure, a statesman unexcelled in his day and generation for patriotism, for lofty conviction of public duty and for the courage necessary to put them into effect. To know him as a public man was not merely to appreciate and admire his great qualities, but to become his firm friend."

Parker Tells of Loss.

New York, June 25.—In commenting on the death of Former President Cleveland, Alton B. Parker, candidate for president in 1904, said: "Yesterday Grover Cleveland was easily the foremost citizen of our country, enjoying a full measure of public confidence and affection. Today we learn of his being taken from us. We shall miss his wise counsel, the word seasonably and courageously spoken, when love of country prompted. But we shall have with us the memory of his splendid manhood and distinguished public service, modestly rendered, with the public weal always and only in mind, never once a thought as to its effect upon himself."

Widows' Pensions Taxable.

Columbus, O., June 25. — Widows' pensions accumulated and deposited in bank are subject to taxation in this state. Attorney General Ellis rendered an opinion to E. N. Warden of Napoleon to that effect, the sum, of course, exceeding the exemption amount.

OBITUARY.

Myrtle May Lauer Swhavel was born July 20, 1887, in Marion county and lived there until she was fifteen years of age, when she moved with her parents to Thompson township Delaware county. She was married to Harry Swhavel, October 2, 1907. With her husband she then moved near Morral, where they resided on a farm until the death angel called her. To Mr. and Mrs. Swhavel was born one son which was laid to rest in his mother's arms. While making her home with Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Schultz, of Morral, she united with the Methodist church at Morral, in 1907, under the pastorate of Rev. Mr. Smith. She died at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Swhavel, the parents of the bereaved husband, June 17, 1908, aged twenty years, eleven months and twenty days. She leaves to mourn their loss a loving husband, her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Lauer, two sisters, Bertha and Goldie, and two brothers Harley and Harold Lauer, of Radnor, besides many other relatives and a wide circle of friends where she lived and was dearly loved. She was a good daughter, a loving wife and a tender sister. The funeral service was held at the Thompson chapel Rev. Mr. McCleary, of Green Camp, officiating. Burial followed in the Thompson cemetery.

PRICE OF MEATS.

The packers and the retail butchers explain variously the sudden rise in the price of meats, which amounts, for cuts of beef to an average increase of ten cents a pound in six weeks' time. Some hold that it is "just a natural result of the panic last fall," when the stockmen sold their cattle to meet the urgent demands of their bankers; others declare that the Western growers, restive under the exactions and restraints of the beef trust, have found it profitable to sell their corn to the breakfast food companies rather than turn it into live steers, while a third explanation is that the floods in Kansas, hindering shipments to market, are taken advantage of by the packers to make their demands not only higher, but exorbitant.

Records of beef consumption show that the public knows very well what to do in the face of advancing prices. It has learned, in the first place, that the cheaper cuts of meat are the more nutritious, and properly cooked, quite as tender as the higher priced portions, and they have heard their physicians say that they are eating twice as much anyhow as the best conditions of health and efficiency would permit. Hence the sharply increased demand, noted in our news columns, for the so-called poorer cuts, as well as the progressive reduction in recent years in the demand for all meats, a reduction which the statisticians think will be permanent. The public may be well assured that if the beef trust is trying to profit either by natural or by forced conditions its returns from higher prices are got at the cost of curtailed business.—New York Times.

THE DIAMOND MAKER.

The opening of a sealed envelope in the vaults of a London bank and the discovery that the Lemoine formula for making diamonds supposed to be contained therein is only a jumble of meaningless words explodes a mystery which has rivalled the Humbert imposture and the Druce case in sensational features. Efforts to get hold of this document, as jealously guarded as the Fitzherbert marriage papers in Coutt's bank or the Druce grave, were first attempted last March in the proceedings to prove Lemoine a swindler.

Lemoine's claim that he could manufacture diamonds gained many converts. Lord Armstrong was convinced of its genuineness. Sir Julius Wernher, of the DeBeers Mining company, is alleged to have advanced $300,000 on the strength of the inventors representations before bringing suit against him. Plausibility was lent to the claim by the charge of a rival discoverer that the formula had been stolen from him.

Lemoine's free demonstrations of his ability to make diamonds gave greater credence to the swindle and perplexed the experts. His method was to put a secret powder in an empty carbon crucible, heat it in an electric furnace and draw it out containing minute but genuine diamonds. His success in duping investors extended over a number of years and enabled him to live handsomely in a mansion on the Rue Pigalle in Paris.

Not the least interesting feature of the deception practiced by Lemoine is that it was based on a popular credulity for which the discoveries of modern industrial chemistry had prepared the way. He improved upon laboratory experiments in producing artificial rubies and other precious stones by perpetuating a swindle of which Cagliostro might have been proud.—New York World.

A married man could be ideally happy if his wife would let him wear his old clothes to business and his best ones when he goes fishing.

To Get Them All Clean.

Norah, the "green" cook, poked her head in at the dining room door.

"Please, ma'am," she asked, "an' how will I be knowin' when the puddin' is cooked?"

"Stick a knife into it," said her mistress, recalling the cookbook instructions. "If the knife comes out clean, the pudding is ready to serve."

"Yis, ma'am."

"And, oh, Norah!" The mistress had an afterthought. "If the knife does comes out clean you might stick all the rest of the knives into the pudding."—Everybody's Magazine.

AWAIT THE NEXT MOVE OF CASTRO

Washington Officials Will Let Him Play His Hand.

ALL DIPLOMATIC RELATIONS SEVERED

Charge D'Affairs at Washington Is in the Dark.

Senor Veloz Has a Long Consultation with Acting Secretary Adee, but Will Not Ask for Passports. He Has Received No Advices Whatever Relative to the Departure of Secretary Sleeper.

Washington, June 25.—Acting Secretary of State Adee had a long conference with Senor Veloz, Venezuelan charge d'affaires in Washington, but no information was given out at the state department relative to the nature of the subject under discussion.

Mr. Veloz has no idea of demanding his passports as the outcome of the withdrawal of Jacob Sleeper, the American secretary in the city of Caracas, who is coming home by direction of the state department, and it is admitted in official circles that the act means a practical cessation of diplomatic relations with Venezuela.

Mr. Veloz knew nothing of what had occurred in Venezuela in connection with the closing of the American legation there until he read the papers. Nothing had prepared the charge for this action on the part of the state department and the latest mail advices, which were dated the 12th, reported that everything was quiet and there was not even any mention of bubonic plague, which is said to be provalent in some of the ports and even in the capital at Caracas.

Certainly in the absence of any direct instructions from his government the charge will make no demand for passports, and it is quite evident that he scarcely expects such instructions.

It develops that the program adopted by the state department is after all not one of the moment, but is the result of the careful deliberation on the part of Secretary Root and Assistant Secretary Adee dating back to last winter, when, at the request of Senator Lodge, the state department submitted to the senate all of the great mass of correspondence that has been exchanged between Washington and Caracas within the last five years in regard to American claims.

What the next step in this international complication will be is a problem that no one connected with the administration here appears able to answer. It is said that the present is a time to await developments, especially to see whether President Castro, always resourceful, is willing to permit the United States to take the next step without any intervening move on his part to mend the situation which he has brought about. Castro alone is the dominant figure in Venezuelan affairs, and it is believed here he will continue to play that role, as he has done for nine years, unless conditions should be developed to break his one-man power.

The severance of diplomatic relations between America and Venezuela is regarded here as technically complete, and it is not necessary for the state department to serve upon the Venezuelan government any further notification of the termination than was conveyed to that government by Mr. Sleeper in person when he withdrew from Caracas and indicated that the Brazilian diplomatic representative would be placed in charge of the archives of the American legation.

The declination of the Venezuelan government to issue passports to Mr. Sleeper at his request is regarded by the Latin-American element in this city as a rather hateful sign. They believe that Mr. Sleeper did not demand his passports (which of course he might have had if he persisted) as a political step, but rather with the purpose of insuring free passage for the legation party through the rigorous quarantine lines which would have to be crossed in order to take ship.

Runaway Fatal to Child.

Newark, O., June 25. — Dragged about a field under a hayrake by a team of runaway horses until she was terribly injured, Aubrey, 14-year-old daughter of Edward Carlett of Homer, died three hours later. The child was driving a team when the neckyoke broke and the tongue of the rake fell to the ground. This frightened the horses. They started to run and the girl fell in front of the rake.

A woman's idea of the only safe way for her boy to go swimming is to get religion, and have the minister dip him.

Don't expect too much of any one. But never let him suspect that you don't expect it of him.

MARION WEEKLY STAR.

VOL XXIV NO 6 — MARION, OHIO, SATURDAY, JUNE 27, 1908 — PRICE FIVE CENTS.

A MASSACRE AT TEHERAN

Possibly the Bloodiest of the Century

EIGHT HUNDRED PERSONS KILLED

Men, Women and Little Children Are Victims

TROOPS OF SHAH ARE LET LOOSE ON THEM

Not Only Sabers but Machine Guns Used

Massacre Has Its Origin in Demand of Russian Cossacks for the Lives of Certain Russians Ordered Put to Death—The Answer Is a Volley from House of Parliament—At This Point the Shah Orders Out His Troops and the Square Around the Legislative Building Becomes a Shambles—Russia Will Make Persia Pay Heavily for Today's Work

Berlin June 25 —A dispatch from Teheran says

Eight hundred persons men women and children publicans and soldiers were killed here today in the bloodiest massacre of the century Tonight the city is a shambles Riot reigns through the street and a bloody reign of terror is sweeping the entire country The carnage resulting from direct orders from the Shah started in the streets of the city today when the imperial artillery opened on the mob which surrounded the capital and mowed down hundreds in a leaden hail

Maddened by the sight of blood troops and citizens mingled in an indescribable free for all butchery Women and children were not spared Dismembered bodies of the dead in many cases were mutilated beyond recognition

Limbs were chopped off eyes gouged out and noses and tongues slashed from the dead bodies

Indescribable Outrages

Even the dead bodies of women were not spared indescribable outrages occurred on every hand Fifteen reform leaders were dragged before the Shah and without even the formality of a trial or court martial were condemned to death Before the order could be executed in military style the mob seized the men and they were literally cut to pieces with sabers and daggers before they could be stood up to be shot

The maddened mob of bloodthirsty troops were headed by leaders of the reactionary party who encouraged the slaughter and waving bloody garments of their slain victims incited the troops on to greater fury

Following the butchery terror stricken refugees who escaped the first swings of the maddened troops sheiks and princes fled from the city and drunken cutthroats are now in pursuit of the refugees The desert district immediately to the east is a prey to plunder and the city is now given over to loot and lust

Spreading the News

Criers and signal code have served to spread the news like wildfire throughout all Persia and the entire nation is said to be in armed revolt

The outbreak of today has been threatened for several days and was precipitated by an attack made on the house of parliament by a company of Cossack soldiers presumably acting on orders from the Russian government which had been trying by baneful means to check the widespread disorder in the empire

The Cossacks demanded the release of a number of political prisoners arrested on the order of the Shah and who were in imminent danger of being put to death The reply to this demand was a heavy fire from officials within the building which killed several of the Cossacks The Cossacks were reinforced according to one despatch received here and attempted to renew the attack

Shah Calls Out Troops

It was then that the Shah's troops who had been quartered near the summer palace at Dishshah were sent into the fight There were several thousand of these troops well drilled and armed with machine guns and cannon They attacked the soldiers surrounding the house of parliament and owing to their superior numbers soon effected a complete rout It was then that they turned their attention to butchering the people right and left and committing the most unholy outrages

The Shah's only support now is his weak kneed cabinet and his soldiery The assembly has cut loose from him and has advised the people to take any steps to be exercised on the Shah

It is certain that the outbreak of today will call for summary action by Russia It is reported here that Russian troops which were stationed along the frontier are now hurrying to the Persian capital The ultimate overthrow of the Shah is believed to be the only possible result of today's butchery It is certain that the powers will not permit him to continue the slaughter of his people and he will never be able to place them after this outrage

Town of Urmi Sacked

Constantinople June 25 —The Persian town of Urmi was invaded by bands of wild Kurds and imperial Turkish soldiers today who attacked the mosques where many of the people took refuge and after firing the buildings threw many of those who resisted into the flames

The Kurds sacked the town and carried away everything of value Their depredations were extending into the surrounding territory and the people fled in wild disorder

Protests have been lodged with the Porte which hampered by lack of funds is unable to send troops to resist the depredations of the Kurds Neither is Arabistan able to do anything to relieve the situation

Advices received here indicate that the missionaries in Urmi and the foreign residents were not molested by the Kurds

Corpses Heaped About Streets

London June 26 —Advices to the Central News say the number of dead in the massacre at Teheran will mount into the hundreds They say that after the troops stormed and

PLAN TO STARVE OUT THE DEVILS

Alleged To Have Caused Death of Woman

HORRIBLE TALE FROM ZION CITY

Will Bring About Investigation by the Police

It Is Claimed Mrs Louisa Jane Thompson Fasts for Forty-One Days in Effort To Cast the Devils from Her While Members of the Cult of Which She Is Member Plead with Her To Stick It Out

Chicago June 22 —Mrs Louisa Jane Thompson aged thirty eight wife of the Rev Adam Thompson leader of a new cult at Zion City died under circumstances which today prompted the police and Coroner Taylor of Lake county to begin investigation to ascertain if any person should be prosecuted

Mrs Thompson died last week and was buried Friday Those who saw the body say it was frightfully emaciated and the police were informed by neighbors that Mrs Thompson was starved in an attempt to expel devils by fasting She is said to have been without food for forty one days The last two days of her life the informants assert she pleaded for water They say members of the cult sat by the woman's bed and waited for the starvation to cause the devils that infested her body to leave encouraging her to hold out just a little longer

After her death the watchers declared her faith was not strong enough They buried the body quietly

The undertaker is said to have reported that Mrs Thompson died from cancer of the breast As it was known she suffered from that malady the report was accepted without question until rumors concerning the woman's treatment reached Coroner Taylor

The case is similar to that of Mrs Letitia Greenhalt an aged woman who was tortured for days by devil chasers who broke nearly every bone in her body trying to beat the evil spirit that possessed her The old woman died in agony Her son and daughter were arrested They refused to testify against their mother's torturers and the case was dismissed from lack of evidence For a time the devil chasers left Zion City The present cult is known as devil fasters The members believe in starvation as a means of curing diseases Rev Thompson has fifty followers.

EXPEL THE WOMEN FROM UNIVERSITIES

A Sweeping Repressive Measure in Russia

St Petersburg June 22 —One of the most sweeping repressive measures ever attempted by the Czar was promulgated today when M Von Kauffman minister of public instruction decreed that all women students be expelled from Russian universities and none be admitted henceforth

It was known that such a move was under consideration owing to the revolutionary activity of many of the women students but there was little idea that such a radical step would be taken

The new edict affects 2,200 women many of whom are nearing their graduation and hundreds of which are awaiting tearful speeches to get in education

Hundreds of women students are arriving here and are seeking an audience with the Czar in the hope that he can be induced to change his decision The aid of the douma is also being sought Women for years fought for the right of admission to the universities Men students sympathize with the women and if the new order is enforced there will undoubtedly be a repetition of the student riots

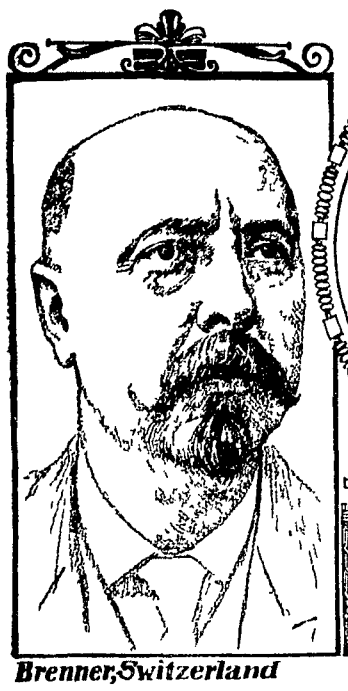
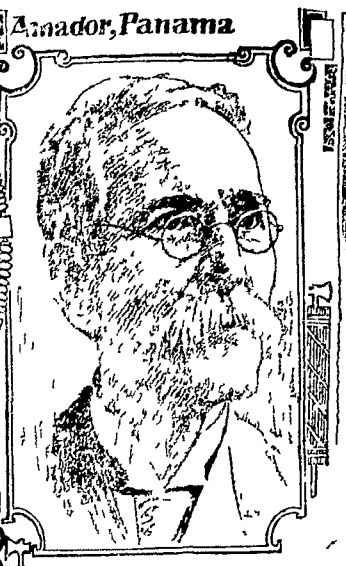
THE WORLD'S PRESIDENTS, BIG AND LITTLE



Brenner, Switzerland

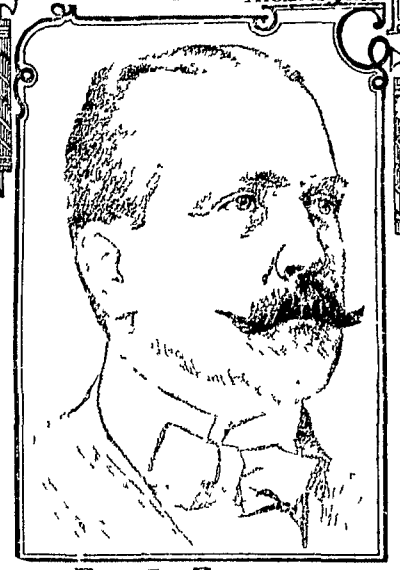
Zelaya, Nicaragua



Amador, Panama

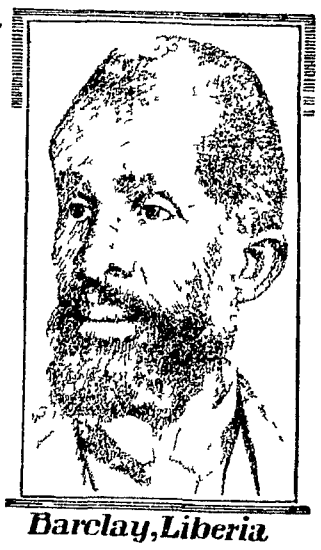
Diaz, Mexico

Castro, Venezuela



Pardo, Peru

Fallieres, France



Barclay, Liberia

THOSE who feel the burden imposed by the various commercial inevitabilities that seem to be a feature of what is known as "presidential year" may console themselves that there are others. They may even congratulate themselves that in this model republic the change of administration is accomplished without actual revolution this well established method of the Latin American governments to the south of us.

When the men who fashioned this republic made George Washington its president they were patterning after no existing form of government on the face of the globe. They had only the magnificent experiments of the Greeks and Romans to guide them splendid failures that they were and the more or less encouraging initiations furnished by the Venetians and the others with European republic makers. It was a brave putting into effect of the theories which had long been domiciled in the breasts of patriots of every race.

When in 1789 the political fathers of this country decided to make the experiment of choosing one of their number for its president it was only the beginning of a problem which was to be demonstrated. It has been worked out so exactly and so successfully that at the present time there are no fewer than twenty executive heads of governments in the new world who are presidents. In fact this title is now borne by every head of an independent government in the western world.

The fashion has not made such remarkable headway in the old world. France which had experimented previously is again following in the Americans under Fallieres and Switzerland is prospering under the rule of President Brenner. Those are the only European states of importance which have acquired the president habit. But there are at least two others of minor interest. One of these is San Marino which has been a sort of republic for so long that the time of its beginning is a matter of dispute. As it to compensate itself for its miniature conditions—it has an area of only twenty two miles and a population of about 10 000—San Marino maintains two presidents. Nor is that the most remarkable political feature of the plucky little republic. It not only insists on providing its self with two chief magistrates but they must be found new every six months. With San Marino system to be adopted in this country the woes of those who are now suffering from the all too speedy return of the four year period would be augmented disastrously. The remaining European republics is Andorra a little state perched among the Pyrenees which has been independent since the days of Charlemagne. With an area of about 170 miles it maintains a democratic form of government being ruled by twenty four consuls.

New World Presidents

It is the presidents of all the Americas however who are of importance in this discussion. As a nation we are so immersed in the contemplation of our own good fortune in the matter of securing satisfactory rulers that we bother ourselves but little concerning the presidents of the various great states south of us.

Beginning with the old settled mule said of Nord Alexis president of Haiti that he is fat and away the most picturesque among the twenty presidents of the new world. Originally a giant in physical appearance his ninety three years of strenuous living have bowed his once erect form and shriveled his almost into parchment. Thus far however he shows not the slightest sign of relaxing his iron grip on the affairs of his long suffering country. Alexis has a record a very bad one. It is hardly possible in this age that those who are in a position to know assert that this old negro president is probably the most undesirable citizen of any republic which possesses a semblance of such that he is endowed with a worldly thirst for the shedding of blood and that he is not at all particular as to whose blood it may happen to be. He is despotic and cruel and is known to have been the high priest of superstitious and bloody rites that are entirely foreign to the duties of a president as they are understood further north.

Alexis is one of the three negro presidents the other being his neighbor the executive of the Dominican Republic and the very respectable President Arthur Barclay of Liberia.

An Admirable Executive

It is a relief to turn from the barbarities of the old savage who rules Haiti with the despotism of a vicious dictator to the admirable administration of Alfonso Pena the capable and dignified chief magistrate of the great republic of Brazil. He is unique among the Latin American presidents from the fact that he is a man of peace. His record is admirable in every respect. He has never been engaged in any of the plotting and planning so characteristic of tropical politics and has never been in sympathy with revolution in any form. When the Brazilians were scheming to get rid of old Dom Pedro Pena kept aloof from their deliberations and would not even consent to discuss the overthrow of the monarchy. After the abolition he made no effort to connect himself with public affairs although there was a mind for his services from all parts of the republic. An ardent republican he continued to teach political economy in the university and when he was elected vice president he did not give up his classes. In 1906 Pena was made president of the republic and so quietly and satisfactorily has he conducted Brazilian matters of state that the revolutionary idea seems to have died out entirely.

No other president of the southern republics has achieved his heart's desire without serious opposition. Even the genius of a Porfirio Diaz did not succeed in making its possession dominant in Mexico until he had made himself the winner in the last one revolution and most of the others have been the central figures in two or three. Ismael Montes president of Bolivia was a law student when the war between his country and Chile broke out, and he threw down his books and enlisted as a private soldier in the volunteer army. He fought to such good purpose that when he returned to his law studies he was entitled to be addressed as captain. Although he prefers to be known as a man of peace it is a fact that President Montes has twice led his army against Brazil to settle a territorial boundary dispute.

Jose Pardo president of Peru who made himself so agreeable during the recent call of the United States fleet at Callao is also a lawyer. He is regarded in Washington as one of the best friends of the United States in South America.

Some of these southern presidents have been the heroes of many narrow escapes. Manuel Amador head of the republic of Panama who entertained Mr. Roosevelt and his party on their visit to the canal zone has been compelled to avail himself of more than one undignified ruse in order to save his neck. At one time he made his way across the isthmus in a lard barrel. Jose S. Zelaya president of Nicaragua literally fought his way into the presidential chair. One day after he had led the army of the republic to a fiercely contested victory he strode into the presence of the president and his cabinet a revolver in either hand, and announced to the astounded statesmen that he had not been fighting altogether for glory that he had made up his mind to try the presidency for awhile. An election was held immediately and there was no opposition to Jose S. Zelaya.

Zelaya and his fellow dictator of Guatemala Manuel Estrada Cabrera, seem to have made Central America practically their own. They are both brilliant men after the Latin American fashion and it cannot be denied that they have done much to benefit their respective states. During Cabrera's first term he showed a good deal of energy in promoting various industrial enterprises and things began to assume a prosperous aspect quite foreign to that part of the world. Most of the great things expected of Cabrera have not come to pass. Those who are in a position to know declare that this is not the fault of the president that he is actually obliged to devote all of his energy to the business of keeping himself from being assassinated.

THOMAS F. RICE.

ELLIS REPLIES TO CRITICISM

Gives a Chart for Benefit of Mr. Bryan.

EXPLAINS MEANING OF THE PLATFORM

Ellis Claims Omissions Are Not Important.

The Attorney General Admits That the Anti-Injunction Plank Will Not Satisfy the Extremists on Either Side, but Claims It Points to a Straightforward Plan for Removing the Cause of Complaint.

Columbus O. June 23.—In a reply to W. J. Bryan's criticism of the Republican platform, Attorney General Ellis, who was its chief author has issued a statement in which he emphatically denies that the original draft of the platform was changed with the intention to displease or disappoint the President or Secretary Taft. Mr. Ellis says in part:

"Of the seven omissions he (Mr. Bryan) refers to, six are in no sense issues before the people at this time, nor is there been any attempt to make them such by the administration nor by any other influential element in the party. The seventh concerns injunctions. Upon this subject Mr. Bryan's criticism exhibits his usual recklessness of statement and readiness to assume that his own lack of information must be the prevailing condition. The charge that the Republican declaration with respect to the use of the writ of injunction was designed to deceive the laboring men' is unworthy of a candidate for president and the further charge that this plank merely declares the existing law and will give no relief in those cases in which there has been an abuse of discretion or the apprehension of it is unworthy of any lawyer who has examined this question. The anti injunction resolution is a frank, clear statement of the Republican party's position on a question on which others have been attempting to deceive labor. The sole basis of any rational complaint as to the issuance of injunctions in labor cases has been the use of the writ without notice and the long delays in some instances which have intervened before a hearing of the case. The present statute does not require any notice at all before the granting of a temporary order and it is entirely within the discretion of the court to postpone to any time the judge may see fit the hearing upon the question of an injunction. The Republican plank simply declares that notice shall always be given unless an irreparable injury will result from delay and in that case there shall be a speedy hearing provided. In other words, the platform declaration is designed to give assurance that what is now the general practice in the federal courts shall be made universal by statute, in order that hereafter no cause of complaint or misapprehension shall remain. This may not satisfy the extremists on either hand but it was not expected to do that. It will meet the approval of every right thinking man, whether an employer or an employe. No party can lose by bravely taking a stand for what is right whoever complains just as none can profit by taking a stand for what is wrong whoever applauds."

Mr. Bryan objects further to the phrase in the injunction plank which proclaims confidence in the integrity of the courts. It is true, perhaps that the convention which is yet to meet in Denver, rather than that which has just adjourned at Chicago should express faith in the integrity of the courts but in view of the Democratic attack in 1896 and the fact that the same forces which then controlled that party are once again in supreme command it would seem entirely appropriate for the Republican party not only to remove any possible cause of complaint in the use of the writ of injunction but to make it clear that it would resent again, as it did in 1896 any attempt to assail the judiciary. All that any one wants is that the powers of the federal courts with respect to the use of injunction shall be accurately defined by statute to the end that all occasions for complaint in labor cases which happily have been rare in the past shall disappear in the future. The Republican plank points to a simple and straightforward way of achieving this purpose.

State Foots the Bill

Columbus O. June 23.—The state will be called upon to pay $45 000 to meet the expenses of placing troops in the tobacco districts of Brown and Adams counties to protect the beds against night riders bent on destroying the plants to the end that no crop of tobacco should be raised this year. The state emergency board headed by Governor Harris were asked at a meeting held today to vote this allowance.

No one expects that his grave will be neglected.

A HOLIDAY FOR THE QUEEN CITY

When Candidate Taft Is Formally Notified

SUCH ARE THE PLANS BEING FORMULATED

Ceremony About the Middle of Next Month

Shortage in the Accounts of Late Clerk of the United States Circuit and District Courts at Columbus Is Found—It Will Run Between Twenty and Twenty-Five Thousand Dollars, It Is Said.

Cincinnati O. June 23.—A general holiday for the day when William Howard Taft will be formally notified of his nomination as Republican candidate for the presidency is planned by the local organizations the celebration to be entirely nonpartisan in character. It is planned to make the notification day which will come about the middle of July a general holiday with the banks business houses and factories of the city closed so that every citizen can join in doing honor to Cincinnati's distinguished citizen. The notification committee representing every state and territory of the country which was appointed by the Republican national convention will be welcomed and made the guests of a reception. There will be a big parade and outdoor demonstration, the details of which have not yet been worked out. It is probable that it will be held in one of the parks and that Secretary Taft will be invited to make an address. It has also been suggested that the notification be made a public function.

Inspector Finds Shortage

Columbus O. June 23.—An apparent discrepancy of between $20 000 and $25 000 in the accounts of the late Benjamin R. Cowen clerk of the United States district and circuit courts has come to light through the investigation which has been conducted for several weeks by Government Department Examiner Moore of Washington. It is claimed that carelessness of deputies in the office of Clerk Cowen at Cincinnati is partially responsible for the deficit and Cowens bondsmen may be called upon by the government to make good the loss. Cowens friends refuse to believe that any part of the shortage was caused by any criminal act on his part.

The steel bars were sawed and the prisoners let themselves down with a rope. A woman's footprints on the ground below the window led to the discovery that a woman who had introduced herself as the wife of Crowley and had daily visited the prisoners is also missing. She is believed to have furnished the saws and rope.

The fourth jail breaker Earl Guessler was a trusty.

The chief relatives of the bride groom present were the dowager Lady Dudley his mother Lord and Lady Dudley the wives of his three other brothers Ladies Evelyn Mary and Cecil Ward.

Service Is Short

The actual wedding service was short. Only two hymns were sung and these by the choir, one of the finest in England. The bride looked tall and queenly and Mr. Ward with his more than six feet of athletic physique is accounted one of the handsomest men in town.

Mrs. Potter Palmer of Chicago takes some of the credit for today's notable union for it was while her guest at Homburg that Miss Reid met her husband.

The presents were the finest ever seen in England outside of a royal palace. The strong room at Dorchester House the Reid Home where the presents now are has been guarded by three detectives night and day. No one was allowed to see the presents until yesterday when Miss Reid herself exhibited them.

Gift of the King.

The gift of the king was a bracelet thickly studded with diamonds and a huge Alexandrite cats eye of the most vivid sea green the crowning gem. The gift is considered unusual as the gem is thought by many to be an omen of ill luck.

The queen also gave the bride a diamond bracelet and the king and queen presented a silver cruet to the bridegroom. Mr. and Mrs. Reid gave the bridegroom a dozen silver plates and a magnificent automobile.

The Prince and Princess of Wales gave two fine old silver dishes dating back to the XVI century. The president of the brides parents was a diamond collar and tiara. The Ward family gave a unique collection of old English silver collected during the last three centuries.

The Reception.

After the wedding a reception was held at Dorchester House to which all of the fashionable London and many Americans who could not be accommodated at the chapel were invited. Shortly after the service Mr. and Mrs. Ward started on their honeymoon. They will be away until the end of September and on their return will make their home in Lord Dudley's house in Carleton gardens. This is one of the finest houses in London and the Wards will occupy it during Lord Dudley's stay in Australia.

THE SURGEONS ARE SINGING HIS PRAISES

Famous German Surgeon Uses Glass Cage in Operation.

New York, June 22.—New York surgeons are today singing the praises of Dr. Ernst Sauerbruch professor of surgery in Marburg university in Germany. In an operation upon a dog in Rockefeller Institute before a distinguished company of surgeons he demonstrated the success of a glass cage in which the operation was performed as a means of neutralizing air pressure so that the lungs will not collapse when exposed to air.

The danger from this has always been the great drawback to operations in the chest but by means of Dr. Sauerbruchs device this danger seems to have been minimized. A partial vacuum is created in the glass cage the normal air pressure being reduced from 760 millimeters to 700. This slight diminution Dr. Sauerbruch found was sufficient to permit the lungs of animals to functionate without the protection of their natural shields.

The air pressure in the cage is kept down by an exhaust pump fresh air being admitted under control. The heads of patient and operators protrude from the cage.

POWER TO CLASSIFY PROPERTY IS REMEDY

Ohio System of Taxation Is Very Imperfect.

IMPRACTICAL IN NUMBER OF WAYS

Several Attempts To Change the Tax Laws Are Made, but All Prove Failures—The Opinion of Those Who Make a Thorough Investigation of the Subject.

The uniform rule of taxation required by the state constitution adopted in 1851 never has been and never can be enforced according to its letter.

This fact has been recognized by every person who has intelligently studied the subject with an unprejudiced mind. More than this, it has forced acknowledgement from many honest but prejudiced minds by the force of its truth.

Every person, organization and official tax commission set to the task of studying Ohio's system of state and local taxation, with the view of exposing its evils and discovering remedies for such evils, has reached an identical conclusion. The evils are the result of attempts to enforce an impracticable rule. The remedy is to classify property for taxation so that subjects in each class can be dealt with justly.

TAXATION AMENDMENTS PROVIDING FOR CLASSIFICATION.

(Submitted in 1889.)

"The General Assembly shall provide for the raising of revenue for the support of the state and local governments; but taxes shall be uniform on the same class of subjects."

TAXATION AMENDMENT MAKING CLASSIFICATION.

(Submitted in 1891.)

"Laws may be passed which shall tax by a uniform rule all moneys, credits, investments in bonds, stocks, joint stock companies, or otherwise; and all real and personal property according to the true value thereof in money. In addition thereto, laws may be passed taxing rights, privileges, franchises, and such other subject matters as the legislature may direct."

This was plainly an attempt to classify "rights, privileges, franchises and other subject matters."

ANOTHER CLASSIFICATION AMENDMENT.

After the third failure in 1893, the year in which the tax commission appointed by Governor William McKinley made its report, no further effort was made to amend the constitution for ten years.

In 1902 the Ohio State Board of Commerce took up the work and succeeded in inducing the General Assembly to submit an amendment that was voted on in 1903. This proposed amendment provided for classification as follows:

"The General Assembly shall provide for the raising of revenue for all state and local purposes in such manner as it shall deem proper. The subjects of taxation for state and local purposes shall be classified, and the taxation shall be uniform on all subjects of the same class, and shall be just to the subject taxed."

RESULT OF THE ELECTION.

Vote for the amendment	326,622
Vote against the amendment....	43,563

LESSONS FROM EXPERIENCE.

These four attempts to amend the constitution on the subject of taxation supply data showing the action of electors as follows:

Total vote on amendment.....	518,706
Electors neglecting to vote on amendment	257,015

Electors neglecting to vote on amendment	507,018
Constitutional majority against amendment	111,980
Majority votes in favor of amendment	283,059

Experience of three attempts to amend the constitution on the subject of taxation:

Majority of votes in favor cast on the amendment:

1891.	1893.	1903.
238,163	240,141	283,059

Electors neglecting to vote on amendment:

1891.	1893.	1903.

Constitutional majority against amendment:

1891.	1893.	1903.
98,487	95,380	111,980

This exhibit proves that the problem of securing the adoption of the pending taxation and other constitutional amendments will be successfully solved by the thoroughgoing organization of "The People's Campaign," now being organized by the Ohio State Board of Commerce to make it certain that every elector who casts a vote at the November election shall vote on the constitutional amendments. A failure to do this will be a calamity of the first magnitude for the people of Ohio and all those who are earning a living, operating a business or who own property in the state.

A PECULIAR PEOPLE.

By William T. Ellis.

The International Sunday-School Lesson for June 28 Is: A Temperance Lesson. Eph. 5:6-21.

A few days ago The Brethren, or Dunkards, as they are commonly called, held their annual gathering in the Middle West, and the newspaper dispatches paid as much heed to their peculiar tenets as though they had just been adopted or discovered. This people, like the Friends and Mennonites, have earned for themselves at least the unique distinction of unworldliness. In gentleness and thrift, and unmindful of the rushing world's ways, they quietly pursue what they believe to be the course scripturally enjoined upon brethren of our Lord.

The Dunkards have laid stress upon the Pauline injunction concerning separateness. There is, and should be, in certain profound particulars, a clear distinction between christians and non-christians. It is this separation between the church and the world that the apostle is emphasizing in the passage from Ephesians which is the day's Sunday-school lesson. Paul's summons is to non-conformity; the summons of our own time is to conformity. The present peril of the church is that she will become so thoroughly merged with contemporaneous life that she will cease to bear her natural fruits, to do her proper work, to show her divine marks of unworldliness. The multitude of men and women who think that elaborate and intricate organization is to be the means of the church's success are on the wrong track. Organization may fairly be said to be the day's temptations. Twentieth century mechanics can be no substitute for the power of the Spirit whom Jesus sent. A holy life is more potent than intellectual subtlety in the things which make for righteousness.

Keeping Separate.

While the church in many of her parts is struggling to obliterate all her peculiarities and to become as much like the world as possible, the Pauline exhortations, set for study this week, still ring clear and commanding: "Walk as children of light;" "Have no fellowship with the unfruitful works of darkness;" "Look therefore carefully how ye walk, * * * because the days are evil;" "Be not drunk with wine."

Christian croakers have been lifting up their voices so noisily in the land of late that some of the religious journals have rebuked them as "muckrakers." The trouble with them is that their eyes have become filled with the world's fog: they need to get out of intimate relations with the world and into closer touch with the people of God. The importance of spiritual atmosphere is not regarded as seriously as it should be; a man who would not think of living in a city's slums, yet lets his soul breathe daily only the fetid air of worldliness, making no effort to keep company on the open heights with the noblest of spirits in the rarer atmosphere of spirituality, where the perspective is truer.

Why Not Take a Drink?

On this broad basis, laid down by Paul, the present temperance lesson is to be taught. Self-pleasing and conventionality are the two greatest reasons for indulgence in intoxicants. Scripture strikes at the root of both of these by the royal laws of self-denial and separateness. The christian may not please himself any more than Christ did; and as for the world's ways, he is expressly bidden not to walk therein. The plea that "everybody does" can have no weight with a discriminating christian.

Even the brewers and saloonkeepers are now raising their voice in behalf of "temperance," or moderation. They see that the "do-as-you-please" argument, and their overworked plea of "personal liberty" cannot win in this day of social tendencies. They are not shrewd enough to see that the argument of self-restraint, pushed to its ultimate issue, leads to self-denial and abstinence for the sake of society. Knock away the prop of self-indulgence from under the use of intoxicants and the whole business falls. If a man may not rightfully, and with a free conscience, please himself, regardless of other considerations, then there is no place in the world for the cup that inebriates. Self-pleasing is the pillar and foundation of the liquor traffic.

Some folk, short-sighted, beholding the rapacity of predatory wealth and other forms of greed, think that the intense self-interest thus manifested marks a trend of these new times. Bless their poor blind eyes, they cannot see that this sort of thing is not new! It came into fashion when Adam ate the apple, without thought of consequences. Self-interest, in all its cruelty and ugliness, is not new: it is as old as heathendom. If you would see it in its unmitigated completeness, go to China or India or Africa. This law of self-interest, which underlies the entire drink traffic, is not twentieth century and American; it is distinctively B. C. and heathenish. That is the state from which we are emerging. The surviving signs of it attract especial attention only because we see them in the bright light of the vicarious teachings of Jesus.

The Trend of the Times.

Nobody is reading his newspaper aright who does not discern in these frequently-recurring reports of great and sweeping temperance victories a plain evidence that the world is growing more closely interrelated, more brotherly and more vicarious. Each man's good is becoming increasingly every man's goal. The new conventionality is partaking of the spirit of unselfishness. The day's watchword is social service; the signs of the times are many and multiform, and the temperance movement is only one of them.

"To every pleasure there cometh satiety," declared an old writer; he should have excepted the pleasure of doing good, and of helping to bring in the reign of love to displace the rule of selfishness. This social conception of christianity is in large part responsible for the world's new attitude toward intoxicants. The general welfare is promoted by total abstinence; therefore for the sake of the weak the strong are willing to do without that to which they might be entitled. Every act of self-denial binds us to the world of fellow-beings whose welfare we serve. Jesus has won the heart of humanity, not by His lofty ethical teachings, but by His unreserved sacrifice of Himself. He "emptied himself:" therefore the world is full of Him. The bible basis of temperance is this christly one of self-denial for the world's sake.

Woman Decapitated.

Columbus, O., June 22.—Mrs. James Comstock of Sunbury, 20 miles north of Columbus, on the Cleveland, Akron & Columbus railway, threw herself in front of a fast southbound passenger train and was decapitated. Her head lodged on the trucks of the tender and was carried 340 miles before it was found, the engine having made the trip to Columbus, back to Cleveland and returning as far as Condit. Mrs. Comstock was about 60 years of age and had been in ill health.

Admits Cruelty to Child.

Marysville, O., June 22. — Reuben Huffman, a farmer of Allen township, was arrested on complaint of neighbors, who charged him with unmercifully whipping his daugter Bertha, 13, and was bound over to the grand jury. The girl was taken to a doctor for treatment. Huffman admitted to Prosecuting Attorney Balinger, it is said, that he punished his daughter too severely and that he was sorry for it.

Woman Attacked by Sheep.

Bellefontaine, O., June 22.—Mrs. Juliet Richey, 80, while walking in the orchard at her home near Huntsville, was knocked down by a sheep. Her hipe bones were broken and she will probably die.

There never yet was a milliner who could do much toward your heavenly equipment.

TAXATION QUESTION IS VERY IMPORTANT

A Campaign by the People for a Change.

AMENDMENT TO THE CONSTITUTION

State Board of Commerce Starts Movement To Make Ohio the Best State in the Union in Which to Earn a Living—How the Campaign Is Conducted.

The General Assembly has submitted to the voters for adoption at the election to be held Nov. 3, 1908, three amendments to the State Constitution, the adoption of each of which is of vital importance to the progress, prosperity and common good of all the people of Ohio.

PURPOSE OF AMENDMENTS.

The purpose of these amendments is as follows:

1. To permit the passage of a bill over the Governor's veto by a vote of two-thirds of the members-elect of the General Assembly.

Explanation: As the constitution now stands a bill to be passed over the Governor's veto must receive not less than the same number of votes it received on its original passage. Under this rule the loss of one vote would prevent the passage of a bill over the Governor's veto.

2. To fix the date for convening the regular sessions of each General Assembly on the first Monday in January next after it is elected.

Explanation: The constitution now provides that the members of the General Assembly shall be elected in the even-numbered years and that the regular session shall convene on the first Monday in January in the even-numbered years. If the pending amendment is not adopted the General Assembly elected in November, 1908, will have to be convened in extraordinary session in January, 1909, for the purpose of electing a United States senator to succeed Senator Joseph B. Foraker, whose term expires March 4, 1909. It will also have to be convened in regular session in 1910, as required by the constitutional provision it is sought to amend.

A new General Assembly will be elected in November, 1910. That General Assembly will have to be convened in extraordinary session in January, 1911, for the purpose of electing a United States senator to succeed Senator Charles Dick, whose term expires March 4, 1911. It will also have to be convened in regular session in 1912 as required by the constitutional provision it is sought to amend.

There will be a session of the General Assembly in 1909, 1910, 1911 and 1912 unless the pending constitutional amendment is adopted. If it is adopted the sessions in 1910 and 1912 can be avoided. The expense of these sessions will be saved for the taxpayers. The people of the state will secure a corresponding rest from the many agitations incident to a session of the General Assembly.

3. To classify the subjects of taxation in order to secure a just return from each.

Explanation: This amendment does not make it necessary to change any law now on the statute books. It does not grant any authority for the exemption of any property now taxable. It provides the only way in which the demand for the taxation of public bonds now exempt may be satisfied. It provides the only way in which greater equality in the burdens of taxation can be secured: the only way by means of which methods can be devised to obtain a just return from the owners of franchises, stocks, bonds and other intangible property.

Its real purpose is to give power to the General Assembly to revise the laws of the state as changes in conditions, experience and reason may from time to time show to be necessary for the promotion of the general welfare.

This amendment was drafted and proposed by the tax commission appointed by Governor Harris to investigate the subject of state and local taxation in Ohio. In transmitting this report to the General Assembly, Governor Andrew L. Harris endorsed its recommendations in the following words:

"I heartily endorse the recommendations made by the commission and especially its proposed amendment to Article XII, Section 2 of the Constitution."

CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENTS DEFEATED BY NEGLECT TO VOTE ON PROPOSITION.

Under the provisions of the Constitution, all electors who neglect to vote for a constitutional amendment are counted as having voted against it. Owing to this neglect, four proposed taxation constitutional amendments have been defeated.

MAJORITY OF ALL VOTES CAST AT THE ELECTION REQUIRED.

The Constitution requires that a constitutional amendment, to be adopted, must receive an affirmative majority of all the votes cast at the election. This being a presidential year, the total vote will be unusually large. The majority required to secure such adoption of the pending constitutional amendments will be correspondingly increased.

THE LONGWORTH LAW.

In 1902 the Longworth law was enacted authorizing the placing of constitutional amendments in the party column on the official ballot, as a part of the party ticket. By means of this device five amendments were adopted in 1903 and two in 1905, all straight party votes being counted for those amendments. On account of the ease with which the Constitution has been amended with this device, a widespread and determined demand for the repeal of the Longworth law was initiated by the Ohio State Grange and advocated enthusiastically by its members and many others who rightly believe the Constitution should be amended only by the deliberate affirmative action of a majority of all electors voting at an election.

Believing the fundamental purpose of the people of the state is to make Ohio the best state in the Union in which to earn a living, to operate a business and to own property; knowing the character of the pending constitutional amendments will commend them to the electors as being absolutely essential to the realization of this fundamental purpose; having full faith in the sound common sense of the people; not wishing to aid the adoption of any constitutional amendment that can not be carried on its merits; and believing the State Grange to be right in its contention on this point, the Ohio State Board of Commerce favored the repeal of the Longworth law.

THE PEOPLE'S CAMPAIGN.

The Ohio State Board of Commerce is organizing "The People's Campaign" to secure the adoption of the pending constitutional amendments.

Its plan of organization is as follows:

1. A local committee will be organized at the county seat of each county to undertake organized campaign work throughout the county. This committee will employ a county manager to devote his entire time to carrying out its plans.

2. A township or ward committee will be organized in each township and city ward to interest and instruct electors by organizing subcommittees in every precinct.

3. Every elector will be called upon to enroll himself as an associate in "The People's Campaign" to secure the adoption of the pending constitutional amendments.

4. A county committee, representing all townships, villages and cities, and all vocations, will be organized in each county as soon as the work has been sufficiently developed to give it the required constituency.

5. All organizations of citizens in each county, for whatever purpose organized, will be invited to co-operate in this movement by adopting resolutions approving the pending constitutional amendments, and urging its members to work for the enrollment of all electors as associates in "The People's Campaign" to secure their adoption by the people at the November election.

6. The campaign fund required for each county is estimated at only ten cents per elector, in addition to the amount required for the salary and expenses of the county manager. Each local committee will raise and disburse its own fund, paying therefrom all expenses of the campaign incurred in its own county, including a small contribution to a general campaign fund for the state.

COMMON SENSE AND PUBLIC SPIRIT.

"The People's Campaign" to secure the adoption of the pending constitutional amendments is designed to secure a true expression of opinion from all of the people.

It is based on the principle that constitutional amendments, when submitted to the electors of the state by the General Assembly, should be adopted or rejected by a majority of all votes cast at the election.

It is the side partner of no political party.

It is controlled by no class or special interest.

It is for the benefit of all of the people and is entitled to their enthusiastic co-operation and support.

It calls upon each elector to do his individual share, with a surplus margin sufficient to make good any shortage resulting from the failure of others to do their share.

FOR THE GENERAL BENEFIT OF EVERY ONE—FOR THE SPECIAL BENEFIT OF NO ONE.

To assure the people of Ohio that all taxation legislation hereafter enacted will be well considered, conservative, free from dictation by any class interests, and intelligently devised for the common good, the Ohio State Board of Commerce pledges itself, when the taxation constitutional amendment has been adopted by the people, to favor the creation of a permanent expert, nonpartisan tax commission, whose duty it shall be carefully to study and investigate all suggestions for the improvement of our tax laws, so that the General Assembly may be governed largely by the recommendations of such commission when enacting tax laws, to the end that the people of Ohio may enjoy all benefits derivable from the best system of state and local taxation that can be devised for present-day conditions.

Every man ought to be willing to leave the world a few unsolved problems when he has gone.

DAY OF INTENSE HEAT FOLLOWED BY A STORM

Wind, Rain and Lightning Cause of Much Damage.

THE ELECTRICAL SERVICE STOPPED

Power, Lighting and Telephone Wires Are Down—Trees Across the Interurban Tracks—Barn on Farm of William Burt Is Fired by Lightning and Burned to Ground.

Following a day of intense heat and sweltering humidity, a terrific wind and rain storm, accompanied by an electrical display that suspended all trolley traffic and put telephones out of commission, broke upon the city, Friday afternoon about 3:15 o'clock. Great clouds massed themselves in the west and sped eastward rapidly, a vast pall of darkness falling upon the earth with their approach. Lights in the stores and offices were brought into use. The wind blew a gale, huge clouds of dust sweeping through the streets and interfering greatly with traffic. Anxiously people looked out of their homes at the ominous clouds in the western sky. The streets in the uptown district became deserted, pedestrians seeking shelter before the rain.

When the wind began to die down, the sky turned into a copper-colored dome. The rain fell in torrents for fifteen minutes or more, washing the streets clean. Before the rain was over there was another blow. In the country trees were razed and considerable damage was done to fences and outbuildings.

Below Prospect, a large tree was blown across the trolley wire of the Columbus, Delaware & Marion Railway company. At the scene of the fire of the Prospect National Mill company, one of the big smoke stacks was hurled across the Hocking Valley company's tracks. Operation of the C., D. & M. line was blocked for hours. In this city, lightning played havoc with the wires of the Marion County Telephone company and the Marion Railway, Light & Power company. Lightning struck the wires in a dozen or more places, suspending traffic of local cars until after 8 o'clock Friday night. The entire power plant was seriously crippled by the bolts of lightning, and it was late in the evening before workmen could repair the damage and establish the proper circuits for electric lights throughout the city.

General Manager George Whysall, of the C., D. & M., says that the storm caused more damage than any that has passed through this section since the construction of the road. All along the right-of-way of the company between Marion and Columbus, trees were blown down and telephone wires twisted off poles.

Dr. E. H. Raffensperger, the official weather observer, reports that the rain fall was .95 of an inch.

A large barn on the farm of William Burt which is rented by Henry Bowman, six miles east of the city on the Patton pike, was struck by lightning between 3 and 4 o'clock, Friday afternoon, and burned to the ground. Several tons of hay and many bushels of grain were consumed, and all of Mr. Bowman's farming implements were destroyed. The loss will amount to $1,500, partially covered by insurance.

Lightning struck the home of H. L. Bonner, on south Pearl street, Thursday afternoon, tearing off the weather boarding. Mrs. Stella Cunningham, who was sitting near a window, was severely burned on the left cheek. She was not rendered unconscious by the bolt.

DITCH WORK IS BEING DONE IN THE COUNTY

County Officials Burdened with the Work.

IMPROVEMENTS ARE VIEWED LAST WEEK

So Many Ditches Demand Attention That the Commissioners Find It Necessary To Set Some of the Final Hearings as Late as September. The Improvements.

An unprecedented amount of ditching is being done throughout the county. The commissioners and County Surveyor Ault have so much ditch work on hand that it is necessary to set some of the final hearings in September for the ditches granted during the past week.

Since June 15 the commissioners have been kept busy looking after ditches. Monday, they viewed the Williams tile ditch, which will run through the corporation of Agosta. The final hearing will be held August 7. The proposed ditch will be about one mile and a half long.

Tuesday, the commissioners viewed the Bee Run ditch in Scott township and granted it. This ditch will be open and will be about four miles long. The final hearing will be held August 20.

Wednesday, the Lemmer tile ditch in Richland township was viewed and granted. This ditch will be about two miles long. The final hearing is to be held September 1.

The Reeley tile ditch in Green Camp township was viewed and granted, Thursday. It is to be a mile and a half long. The final hearing is set for September 18.

Friday, the county commissioners held the final hearing on the McDonald tile ditch in Marion township, south of town. It will be sold June 27. The ditch when completed will be a mile long.

Last Monday the commissioners viewed the Terry tile ditch, which will run through the corporation of La Rue.

Is There a Dreyfus In the American Army?

RECENTLY there has been transferred from Fort Francis barracks, in Florida, to an abandoned post in Arizona an army officer whose strange case has given rise to much speculation. In spite of all the publicity which has been given the story—the newspapers have made much of it, and it has even been discussed in the halls of congress—the mystery in which it seems to be shrouded has not been penetrated.

The hero of the story—he prefers to call himself a victim—is Colonel William F. Stewart of the artillery corps.

Some of his friends maintain that Colonel Stewart is an American Dreyfus a pitiable scapegoat for the misdeeds of those clothed with an authority which permits them to indulge in the luxury of such a substitute.

That there is no politics connected with the business seems to be indicated by the fact that men of all parties are asking for a solution of the matter.

It has even been proposed by certain leading members of the American senate of both parties to make Colonel Stewart's case the subject of a congressional investigation.

* *

Nothing has come from the apparent eagerness of Senator Rayner of Maryland to get at the bottom of the business. After convincing everybody that he felt a direct personal concern in the affair he relapsed into silence, not, however, until he had introduced a resolution into the senate which directed the president of the United States to appoint a court of inquiry to investigate the case of Colonel Stewart.

Of course there was active, almost violent, opposition to the proposition. Senator Warren, chairman of the committee on military affairs, to which the resolution ordinarily would be sent, seemed inclined to resent the manner in which Senator Rayner had proceeded. He declared that the resolution as it stood was not only a reproof to the president, but was also an attack on the discipline of the army and navy.

"This case has been passed upon by many general officers of the army," he said. "It has received proper attention from the chief of staff down." He objected to establishing a precedent by which army orders to officers might be held up by appealing to a senator.

At this the discussion became general, and many clever and satirical remarks were made. Mr. Rayner confessed that he had no especial interest in the matter beyond a desire to see wrong righted. He admitted that the Stewart in whose behalf he was engaged was a member of an influential Maryland family, but he insisted that he would have been equally zealous in the defense of the least of his constituents.

Finally the resolution was referred to the committee on military affairs, and there it is likely to abide in perfect safety.

* *

Meanwhile the general public, whose curiosity has been stimulated by the discussion in the senate, is asking for information.

At first thought the war department would seem to be the proper source from which the solution of this puzzle might be expected to proceed.

Those who have reasoned thus and have acted accordingly have failed to make themselves the wiser. The officials of the war department decline to discuss the matter, with the excuse that it would be a breach of etiquette to speak publicly of anything which is under consideration by the president.

Not much attempt has been made to conceal the fact that the war lords have tried to compel Colonel Stewart to retire to private life. It is not even denied that his assignment to a command which, if offered to a new graduate of West Point, would be regarded as an indignity is due to the colonel's determination to remain on the active list until forced to retire by the operation of the law.

No one in close touch with the war department is ready to admit that Colonel Stewart is being persecuted. On the contrary, it is current opinion in army circles that he is only getting what he has a right to expect under the circumstances. For a long time it has been no secret in military circles that the war department regards the colonel as "temperamentally impossible," whatever that may mean. It is claimed that both officers and enlisted men find it difficult to "assimilate" with the colonel. Still, no one has accused him publicly of an offense which would warrant the not to be doubted "punishment" which he is receiving.

Putting two and two together, the logical path has made up its mind that the war lords have resorted to the exile policy as a means—perhaps the only means within their power—of getting rid of an officer regarded as "undesirable."

* *

It has leaked out also that for some time an attempt has been making to force the colonel off the active list. Certain persons have seen a letter from the military authorities requesting Stewart to apply for retirement.

It is even known that the "undesirable" colonel replied to the intimation to the effect that he would be quite willing so to do provided he were made a brigadier general as a preliminary. This, it may be observed, is the usual procedure—it is the custom to retire an officer at a rank higher than the grade held at the time of his application for retirement.

In this case it was the evident intention of the war department to make an exception to the general rule. For reasons which are not made public it was purposed to retire the colonel as a colonel only.

As might have been foreseen, there was a "kick" from the colonel. He did not deny that he was about ready to go off the active list, but he objected that he was not inclined to accept the sacrifice proposed. He even insisted that he should go on to the end unless he were given a "square deal."

That end, be it noted, will come in 1911 if the awful solitariness of the Arizona exile does not step in and spoil everything.

This is about all that has come to the light in the case of Colonel William F. Stewart.

Is it, after all, especially mysterious?

Isn't it rather a matter of comparatively easy solution?

Given an old army officer with a fairly creditable record of forty years' service, a personality far from magnetic, a disposition dominated by acerbity. Some time before reaching the legal retiring age he has become so decidedly persona non grata among his fellow warriors that they petition the military authorities to anticipate his retirement. A more acceptable man is waiting impatiently to step into his shoes, and every day he is making his own unfitness more apparent.

Finally the war lords respond to the general demand for his retirement and make certain preliminary overtures. Right here is where the mistake is made. Instead of offering the "undesirable" one the customary douceur of promotion to the rank of brigadier general an exception is made in this case and the toothsome morsel is withheld.

Indignation high and justifiable on the part of the one about to be robbed of his military birthright. Refusal prompt and decisive. Angry protest from the colonel and indignant expostulation from his influential relatives. Increasing choler of the war lords and eventual determination to apply the thumb-screws. Finally total rupture of amicable relations and war to the knife.

Is it not thus or similarly that the colonel has been driven into the martyrdom which still enables him to be a veritable thorn in the flesh of his discourteous tormenters?

One thing which goes far to confirm this view of the whole distasteful business is the fact that such things have happened before. The case of Colonel Stewart is by no means an isolated one. On the contrary, the practice of "exiling" military incorrigibles seems to be recognized distinctly at the war department, especially as the proper discipline for an army officer who declines to retire when he is asked to do so.

Although army officers do not admit it publicly, civilians long connected with the department do not deny that this form of hazing is well established and not infrequently resorted to. The first step is always to send the victim a letter suggesting that he retire at his own initiative.

Quite recently two officers took the hint and asked to be put on the retired list. One of them, a colonel, was made brigadier general as a reward for his complaisance. In this instance there was a little more to the incident than appeared on the surface. The war department officials wanted to make a certain officer head of a bureau. This officer happened to be lieutenant colonel of the regiment of which the man who was retired was colonel. Now, it would have made comment and perhaps done violence to discipline if the appointment had been made over the head of the superior officer. It would not have done to give the promotion to any one under the rank of colonel. So the man who stood in the way received a letter from the secretary's office, and, being wise in such matters, he asked to be retired.

In still another case a colonel who was actually entitled to be retired as a brigadier general lost nearly a year's pay because he wouldn't quit when he was notified.

PETER BACHER'S NAP OF TWENTY-SIX DAYS

Former Marion Man Takes a Good, Long Sleep.

FAILURE TO SELL A PATENT CALLS FOR REST

The Family of the Man Is Very Anxious in Regard to His Condition and Physicians Have a Great Deal of Trouble in Awakening Bacher. The Methods Used.

The following dispatch sent out from Canton, Thursday, will be of interest to many Marion people. Mr. Bacher will be remembered as one of the founders of the old Marion Malleable Iron company.

Peter Bacher, who dropped off in a twenty-six-day's nap because he had failed to sell a patent for making steel, was awakened today by electric batteries and mental suggestion. Bacher came to full consciousness like any normal slumberer. He rubbed his eyes, yawned and stretched out his arms.

Bacher had been working on a steel patent for years, all his hopes and ambitions being centered in it. There are many ways to work off an excess disappointment, but Bacher found relief in an unusual inexpensive manner. On the day he failed to sell his patent he came home and fell into a profound slumber. He resisted all attempts to wake him the next day and the next week. His appearance seemed normal, his breathing being regular and normal.

It was supposed that the pent up excitement of years had resulted in an extreme reaction, but despite all theories the family became very anxious. Various methods were tried but it remained for Dr. T. H. Shorb, of this city, to bring an electric battery and mental suggestion into play. Electricity was applied to his spinal column and the soles of his feet. The command for Bacher to arouse himself was then made by mental suggestion.

At last Bacher stirred and then opened his eyes. He looked up at the doctors, who were conducting the clinic, but did not speak for some time. Before the physicians left the house he was able to talk.

Mrs. Schwable was visiting at the Schwable home Tuesday evening when she took very sick, dying the following morning. Death was due to tuertael fever.

LIGHTNING STRIKES THE HEAD RESIDENCE

But Little Damage Done—Mr. Head Is Shocked.

La Rue, June 20.—[Special.]—The residence of J. H. Head, two miles west of this place, was struck by lightning about 3 o'clock Friday afternoon. The lightning went down the chimney and circled the second floor of the residence. The plastering was knocked off in a number of places through the house and some clothing on the second floor caught fire from the stroke. Mrs. Head and her daughter, who were in the house at the time, did not discover the pranks of the lightning until the house had been filled with smoke from the burning clothing. Mr. Head, who was in the barn, was stunned for several minutes by the stroke. The damage done was not great.

VALUATION OF THE BANKS OF COUNTY

Fourteen Banks Are Appraised at $715,455.

County Auditor Charles L. Allen has completed the valuation of Marion county's fourteen banks. The total valuation as shown by the records is $715,455, an increase over a year ago of $25,925. The valuation represents sixty per cent. of the capital stock, surplus and undivided profits of these institutions.

Agosta is the only corporation in the county that does not possess a bank. There are five in Marion, two at LaRue, two at Prospect, two at Caledonia, one at Morral, one at Waldo and one at Green Camp.

The appraisement of the Columbus, Delaware & Marion Railway company, at a meeting of the county auditors of Marion, Delaware and Franklin counties in Columbus, Thursday, was increased $125 a mile. In this county the C., D. & M. is now appraised at $5,910 a mile.

THE WORLD'S TREND IN PICTURE AND STORY

CHIEF OF ANARCHISTS.

Alexander Berkman is the acknowledged head of all the anarchists in America. He is the man who served twelve years in prison for attempting to assassinate Henry C. Frick, the multimillionaire steel man, during the labor troubles in Pennsylvania.

FRANCE'S PRIME MINISTER.

M. Clemenceau, the French prime minister, rises as early as 4 o'clock in the morning and is never at rest before 11 at night. Everything that he does is done quickly. Even his dinner is not allowed to occupy him more than a quarter of an hour or twenty minutes at the outside. He is a man of the utmost fearlessness. "I am today what I was yesterday," he once observed, "a fighting Republican, always to the fore when blows are to be received no less than when they are to be given." He has fought as many duels as most of his countrymen, but when he fights he insists that the battle shall be a serious one. Some years ago he refused to cross swords with an enemy who had challenged him except on condition that the duel was continued to the shedding of blood, by no means the general rule in a French "affair of honor."

PILGRIMS ON THE ROAD TO CALVARY.

The picture is from a photograph taken on the Via Dolorosa, the road to Calvary, Jerusalem, by a pilgrim. It is well known that numerous devout pilgrims make the ascent on their knees over a stone pavement which is a trial even to foot passengers.

BIG FALLING OFF.

Within the last few years the production of the great Appalachian oil field has dropped from over one-half the total production of the United States to less than one-fourth, chiefly owing to the increase in the quantity of oil produced in other parts of the country.

NEW MOTOR GAS.

A new motor gas, alkoethine, is a mixture of air, alcohol vapor and acetyline, resulting from the spraying of dilute alcohol over calcium carbide. It proves to be a cheaper fuel than gasoline, and the necessary apparatus for producing it can be adapted to any high speed gasoline motor.

THE CROWN PRINCESS OF ROUMANIA IN FANCY DRESS.

The picture shows the crown princess of Roumania in the role of a saintly princess venerated by the Roumanians. She appeared thus at a fancy dress ball for the benefit of a society of young artists. This lady is the niece of King Edward of England and is very popular in Roumania.

A NEW "WATER WITCH"

Alfred Vischer is the latest successful of the "wizards of the hazel wand." With an apparatus which he has devised out of magnets, dry cell batteries, etc., he seems to be able to locate an inexhaustible water supply in places hitherto as arid as the desert. He declares that with the little device illustrated herewith he can find water enough to supply New York city in a dozen places within the city limits.

SAVING THE TIRES.

One of the principal reasons why pneumatic tires on the wheels of cycles and other vehicles gradually become exhausted even when unpunctured is that the compressed air within slowly escapes through the rubber, and this process is hastened by the oxidation of the rubber, which causes it to crack. As at least a partial remedy for this it has been proposed to inflate tires not with ordinary air, but with nitrogen, an inert gas which does not affect the rubber. Tests of nitrogen inflated tires for automobiles have been made in France, and the results are said to be encouraging.

ABRAHAM KIDWELL IS HORSEWHIPPED

He Is Beaten by Perry Brady, a Farmer.

KIDWELL INSULTS BRADY'S MOTHER

Brady Follows Man in a Buggy and Overtakes Him—Uses the Whip Until Kidwell Gets Down on His Knees and Begs for Mercy—Kidwell a Tramp.

Abraham Kidwell, twenty-five years old, a tramp, was overtaken in a buggy by Perry Brady, a farmer, near Webb park on the Green Camp pike, Wednesday evening, and severely horsewhipped because he had insulted Brady's aged mother. Kidwell ran into the home of W. C. Wooley and begged for help, but the door was locked in his face and Brady continued to whip him until he got down on his knees and beseeched mercy.

"You've cut me into ribbons," cried Kidwell as Brady got back into his buggy and started for home.

Kidwell came to Marion last Monday. He said he wanted work and Dr. C. E. Sawyer sent him to his farm, two miles and a half southwest of town on the Green Camp pike, with instructions to his tenant, Noah Lucas, to put him to work. Tuesday, Kidwell, who prided himself on having his home anywhere his hat was off, went on a tantrum. He displayed a violent temper. Wednesday, Mr. Lucas informed him that he would not tolerate such actions, and Kidwell quit. That evening about 8 o'clock he went to the Brady home. Mrs. Brady, who is past sixty years of age, was alone. She refused him admittance. The man cursed her and kicked against the door. The old lady was terribly frightened.

Shortly after Kidwell had gone, Mrs. Brady's son, Perry, drove home, and she told him of what had occurred. Brady turned his horse around, and started in search of the fellow. He overtook him, as stated, in the vicinity of the baseball park, and gave him a beating that he will never forget. Kidwell disappeared down the railroad tracks and has not been seen since.

WILL TAKE ACTION TO COLLECT THE TAX

Officials Claim Jacob Weber Owes $200 Liquor Tax.

The county authorities will take immediate action to recover a liquor tax amounting to $200 from Jacob Weber, the south Main street saloonkeeper, who has been compelled to close his doors. Weber, until last week, had been running his saloon with a license, but under the law had until June 20 in which to renew the license, which expired the fourth Monday in May. Weber made application for a new license, but never procured it.

Unless Weber pays over $200 to the treasurer, that amount being the minimum, Prosecuting John H. Clark will make a levy on the chattels or the building if necessary. The chattels are said to be the property of a Bucyrus man.

One of the large trusses which supported the roof had been loosened and was ready to be lowered to the ground. While doing this it was noticed that a beam which held the purlin in place, was breaking. Jackson was standing on the purlin assisting in pushing the truss over. Shall I Buy a Cream Separator?
WILL IT PAY ME IF I DO?

Butter is too valuable a product to feed to calves or pigs.
Originally the calf got all the cream.
When the milk was set on the cellar shelf, the calf got half the cream and the other half was made into butter.
By setting the milk in spring water, the calf gets one-third the cream and two-thirds goes to butter.
The patent creamer, with ice, gets three-fourths of the cream for butter and one-fourth goes to the calf, in the skim-milk.
The Sharpless Tubular Separator gets all the cream for butter making, and the calf can be fed on perfectly skimmed milk.
THE SHARPLESS CREAM SEPARATOR is absolutely a big money maker, because it prevents waste of cream—and in a 10-cow dairy, you might sell enough cows to pay for a separator, and the cows remaining will make you far more money than when you had the whole herd, and no separator.
More Sharples' in Marion County than any other---and we offer to Send Them Out On Trial.

MAIL CARRIER THE VICTIM OF A THIEF

B. F Stevens Is Robbed While on Duty

HIDES HIS MONEY UNDER WAGON SEAT

Is Late in Reporting Loss to the Police—Ophie Bender and Cora Wagner Are Arrested on a Charge of Robbing a Man at Crestline Some Police Court Notes

B F Stevens employed to haul the mails between the union station and the postoffice was robbed of $82 while performing his duties Saturday night between 10 and 11 o'clock Stevens filled his wagon with mail at the office and started to meet Erie train No 7 He has frequently carried his money and taken chances on losing it rather than accept the advice given him to leave it at the office Because of the numerous hold ups during the past week Stevens felt somewhat afraid of losing his savings He therefore wrapped the money in a paper and concealed it under the seat of the wagon

After loading the wagon he made his trip to the station and unloaded He finished his work before he thought of his treasure under the seat When he went to get the money it was gone and the paper it had been wrapped in was lying by the seat Stevens believes that the money was taken before he drove away from the postoffice as he was not away from the wagon at the station longer than a minute Employes at the office were present when Stevens loaded the mail and state that the theft could not have been committed without their knowledge Stevens did not report his loss to the police until Sunday Owing to the time which elapsed little could be done that might lead to the arrest of the guilty party

Orphie Bender was arrested Saturday afternoon by Officer Bell on a warrant charging her with stealing $272 50 from William Long at Crestline Thursday night Cora Wagner whose husband secured a divorce this month was later locked up on a charge of being implicated in the theft of the money The Wagner woman is an aunt of the Bender woman The two were taking in the carnival at Crestline and met Long The latter suggested a buggy ride and the women consented While Long was seated between the women he alleges that his purse with the amount mentioned was taken from his pocket and later the women made some pretext to get him to leave the buggy While he was out of the vehicle they whipped the horse to a run and drove into Crestline leaving him behind He later discovered his loss and filed an affidavit against the Bender woman Although she claims she did not leave Crestline until Saturday, she could not be located there and her arrest was made when she alighted from an eastbound train The Wagner woman was locked up when she appeared at the prison on request of the Bender woman The pair were taken to Crestline Sunday by the marshal of that place

Mrs Milton Koffroth, of Kirkwood was given a bid scare at the Union station Sunday morning while waiting with her husband for Erie train No . The train being late the couple left the station to take a carride Shortly after leaving the station he woman missed her purse containing about five dollars and papers and certificates to the value of over $300 She returned to the station and inquired of Agent Nobert if he had remembered seeing a one-legged man with crutches pick something up near the seat Officer McDonough overtook the man at a shanty where he was hiding the money The officer returned the purse to the owner and the loser refused to prosecute the man who found the articles and tried to get away with them

RECORDER J. A. KEY IS GIVEN A VERDICT

Judge Babst Renders an Important Decision

MATTER OF THE FEES DRAWN BY RECORDER

Prosecutor John H Clark in Behalf of the State of Ohio Seeks To Recover Alleged Illegally Drawn Fees Recorder Entitled to the Money Some Court Notes

In the suit of Prosecuting Attorney John H Clark to recover alleged illegally drawn fees from County Recorder John A Key Judge Daniel Babst of the common pleas court has found in favor of Key The title of the suit is The State of Ohio on relation of John H Clark prosecuting attorney against John A Key and others The journal entry was received from Judge Babst at Crestline by County Clerk W W Klintecher Monday morning It states

The parties having waived a jury this cause was submitted to the court and was heard on the pleadings and the evidence The court on the issues joined finds for the defendants On the issue tendered by the cross petition of defendant Key the court finds for Key against plaintiff in the sum of $1 10 with interest as prayed for

The costs in the suit are assessed against the plaintiff

In the petition of Prosecutor Clark who began suit as a result of the findings of a state examiner there were twenty six causes of action County Recorder Key and his bonding company were made defendants In the first twenty two causes it was sought to recover various amounts aggregating probably $800 which it was claimed by the state examiner was illegally drawn for keeping up general indexes The remaining four causes of action were to recover fees alleged to have been illegally drawn for making a new G book and a new company book amounting to about $700

In his answer and cross petition County Recorder Key through his attorneys Jacoby & Donithen denied that the work for which he had drawn fees was of an illegal nature He averred that he had followed the law in the matter of fees and that the indexing was authorized by the county commissioners He asked that he be paid $1 10 which amount had been found due him by the state examiner and which sum the prosecutor refused to allow This money it was stated in the state examiner's report was due the county recorder who had not charged according to law for transcribing S and H books In the case Key had presented his bill to the commissioners and received his pay but had neglected to charge enough

The decision of Judge Babst is a complete victory for the county recorder whose suit is the second of a series instituted by the prosecuting attorney to recover alleged illegally drawn fees
